

STREETS OF GOLD — The intersection of Court and North streets may have appeared paved with gold Friday afternoon from a distance but it wasn't a vision of the promised land or kingdom come. Three hundred bushels of corn had been knocked out of a truck driven by a Hillsboro man when a car driven by Franklin D. Woods, Grove City, Pa., collided with the truck at the intersection. Woods was cited on three traffic violations and city street department employees were summoned to remove the corn. Traffic was tied up for an hour.

Crash covers street with corn

The intersection of E. Court and N. North Streets was covered with corn Friday afternoon but it wasn't a new method of ice control or a cheaper method than using salt; rather, it was the result of an accident between a truck driven by Ronald E. Campbell, 29, Hillsboro, and a car driven by Franklin D. Woods, 33, Grove City, Pa. Washington C.H. police officers reported the mishap between the two vehicles which occurred at 3:49 p.m. knocked some 300 bushels of corn from Campbell's truck and knocked the Woods auto onto the sidewalk. The truck was moderately damaged and the auto was severely damaged, according to police.

Woods sustained a facial laceration in the accident but declined medical treatment. Police charged him with failure to yield right of way at an intersection, driving without an operator's license and driving while intoxicated.

The city street department was summoned to the location with a front end loader, shovels and brooms to remove the corn from the roadway. Traffic was snarled for approximately an hour and all but 50 bushels of the spilled corn was salvagable.

Police reported two additional mishaps Friday and the Fayette County Sheriff's Department investigated four accidents which resulted in the injury of three persons, one of which was admitted to Fayette Memorial Hospital.

Atom plant foes continue battle

CINCINNATI (AP) — Opponents to a $500 million nuclear power plant being constructed at Moscow, an Ohio River community of 350, have petitioned to block licensing of the complex.

An Atomic Safety and Licensing Board heard arguments by representatives from Dayton and Cincinnati at a hearing Friday before taking the case under advisement.

The power station, which is being built by Cincinnati Gas & Electric, is 40 per cent complete.

Shoplift charge filed

A 19-year-old Washington C.H. woman was arrested by city police officers on a charge of petty theft through shoplifting.

Marsha L. Eggleton of 2011 Heritage Court allegedly removed her shoes at the shoe department in Buckeye Mart store in the Washington Square Plaza on Columbus Avenue, put them on a merchandise table and then put on a pair of boots and attempted to leave without paying for them. Police reported the value of the boots at $23.99. Ms. Eggleton is presently free on $1,000 bond.

Police reported a second larceny and the Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported an incident of vandalism.

A carton of cigarettes was stolen from Hidy Foods, Columbus Avenue, by a shoplifter who was observed during the theft and apprehended by police outside the store. No arrest was made because the cigarettes could not be found. The incident occurred at 1:26 a.m. Saturday and police are investigating.

'Slasher' slayings bring 11 charges

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man already in prison for a brutal hatchet attack has been indicted in 11 bizarre killings, nine of which police believe were the work of the so-called "Skid Row Slasher."

The county grand jury indicted Vaughn O. Greenwood, 32, on Friday for the killings, mostly of derelicts and transients, over an 11-year period. The indictment was returned after three days of closed hearings under a court-imposed gag order.

Greenwood, an ex-convict, is serving a 32-years-to-life sentence for a knife and hatchet attack on two men in 1964 and the burglary of actor Burt Reynolds' Hollywood Hills home last year.

At Greenwood's sentencing last September, Superior Court Judge Jack Goertzen called him a "phenomenal danger to society."

Evidence presented to the grand jurors indicated the skid row killer, who gruesomely slashed his victims' throats ear-to-ear, cutting through to the spine, sometimes drank the blood of his prey.

Greenwood is expected to be returned to Los Angeles from Folsom Prison next week and could be arraigned within two weeks.

The "Slasher" attacks began Dec. 1, 1974. A victim with a slashed throat was found about once every week until Jan. 31, 1975, when the body of Clyde C. Hay, 34, a mechanic for the National Cash Register Co., was discovered in Hollywood. Most of the other victims were found in the skid row area.

Greenwood also is accused of killing two men 12 years ago in downtown Los Angeles.

According to the indictment, the first victim was murdered Nov. 13, 1964, on the steps of the main library, where derelicts frequently sleep and hang out. The victim bore the characteristic throat slashing and had suffered multiple stab wounds.

The first of the so-called "Slasher" victims was discovered at almost the same location.

The second 1964 victim was discovered Nov. 14 in a second-floor restroom of a cheap hotel where he had been staying. His throat, too, had been slashed after he was stabbed repeatedly in the upper torso and head.

The first seven killings were confined to the skid row area. Several victims were reportedly homosexuals. But the last two victims, neither of them transients, were found in the Hollywood area.

More than 30 officers had been assigned to a so-called "Slasher Squad" full-time, looking for a man described by psychiatrists as a "sexually impotent coward, venting his own feeling of worthlessness on hapless derelicts and down-and-outers."

Kleindienst portrait unveiled in Justice Department halls

WASHINGTON (AP) — Has it been nearly two years since Richard Kleindienst stood and wept as he pleaded guilty to breaking a law he had sworn to uphold as the nation's attorney general?

If memories of that day flitted through Kleindienst's mind, he gave no sign of it Friday as he returned to the Justice Department for what he called "the greatest honor of my life."

He grinned broadly as his portrait was unveiled and hung in the corridor just outside the office he occupied as Richard Nixon's attorney general from June 12, 1972, to May 25, 1973.

In the flesh and in the portrait, he was the picture of the prosperous Washington lawyer with his well-tailored navy pinstripe suit, the bottom vest button unfastened over his rotund midsection.

He glowed with pleasure at the jibes from Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi, Deputy Atty. Gen. Harold R. Tyler and Solicitor Gen. Robert H. Bork as they delivered the speeches, such ceremonies demand.

But the jibes were good-natured and contained no hint of Kleindienst's dark days of negotiating a deal with the Watergate prosecutors, themselves a part of the department, though with a charter of independence.

Kleindienst came close to a perjury charge, a felony, but was allowed to plead guilty to a misdemeanor of failing to testify fully to the Senate Judiciary Committee. He had testified under oath that the White House had not pressured him, as deputy attorney general, to drop an antitrust suit against the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. It was disclosed later that an angry Nixon telephoned Kleindienst personally to demand that he drop the case but that Kleindienst resisted.

"I was wrong, and I sincerely regret it," Kleindienst told the court in May 1974 as he was sentenced to one month in jail and a $100 fine, both suspended.

Choosing to skip over that period, Levi told the gathering of some 200 department officials and other dignitaries that he was "struck by the rich vein of affection for Mr. Kleindienst" among department employees.

The four-foot-high portrait, by Arizona artist Robert G. Harris, was hung next to Robert F. Kennedy's in the gallery of portraits of former attorneys general.

KIRKPATRICK FUNERAL HOME

Dear friends,

When the proper time comes to dispose of personal effects of the deceased, items of sentimental value will quickly be recognized by close family members - items that otherwise might be discarded by disinterested persons. It is wise to look thru papers and books, as it is possible that something of importance or value may be discovered.

Respectfully,

Privacy in phone talk

The Federal Communications Commission has long required that a beep tone must be sounded whenever a telephone conversation is being recorded. This rule is an essential safeguard of privacy, as well as protection against blackmail or other illicit use of what is said. Unless they were put on the alert in this way, individuals could have their remarks recorded without their knowledge. It is thus gratifying that the FCC has voted unanimously to keep the beep tone requirement in the face of an effort to have it eliminated. The main objection raised by Communications Certification Laboratory was based on the cost factor. The FCC properly rejected this and other objections, noting that

"in this instance we believe that privacy of communication is of paramount importance." We concur in that judgment, and think a majority of Americans would. Eliminating the beep tone rule would open the way to unrestrained recording of conversations without the knowledge of the person on the other end of the line.

Job dip swells college ranks

persons enrolled fulltime and parttime in 3,062 institutions of higher learning surveyed.
"As the enrollment drop in the early 1970s caught the higher education community by surprise, so did the size of the rise in 1975," said Dr. Parker, whose findings are published by the "American Testing Program," (ACT). The annual survey was formerly published by the journal "Intellect," and under its earlier title, "School & Society."
Parker predicted that college enrollment nationally will peak in the late 1970s and taper off in the 1980s.
He said colleges and universities should make plans to fill the vacancies with programs for alumni, special students, women, and persons interested in continuing education.
Enrollment of such parttime students in the institutions covered increased 7.7 per cent this fall for a total of 2,013,047.
Parker said the factors which might be causing the unusual increase is the entry or re-entry of women into the educational mainstream, senior citizen and continuing education students, larger numbers of transfers, institutional emphasis on retention programs that counter heavy attrition rates, especially among disadvantaged and ethnic minority students and an increasing number of collegiate returnees.

"In these times of job scarcity, recession and inflation, many young as well as older Americans have sought to resume or embark upon a collegiate experience," Parker said.
"I feel also that a significant segment of younger as well as more mature persons in 1975 were more convinced of the merits and the need in terms of life enrichment of higher and post-secondary education," he said.
The report said women now make up 45.4 per cent of the enrollment in 1,472 institutions. Enrollment in 100 urban colleges and universities was up 5.5 per cent.

Castro expanding influence by sending Cubans abroad

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 2,000 Cubans are working in about a dozen poor countries far from Cuba's borders as part of a plan to expand Cuban influence in the Third World, U.S. officials report.

The Cubans are scattered across three continents, building schools and hospitals and offering technical assistance and political advice.
In contrast to well-publicized Cuban military involvement in Angola, these Cubans work almost unnoticed by the rest of the world in such countries as Guinea, the Congo, Somalia, Tanzania, Guinea-Bissau, Sierra Leone, Equatorial Guinea, Algeria, South Yemen and Vietnam.

Officials here have no estimate on how many of these Cubans are military personnel, but Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger recently suggested the figure is high. Discussing Cuban armed forces at a news conference, he said, "They seem to be everywhere but Cuba."

Prime Minister Fidel Castro last month acknowledged that Cuban military involvement has not been limited to Angola. He told the Cuban Communist Party Congress that the Cuban army had "shed blood more than once in other countries threatened by imperialist aggression."

Until a little over a year ago, a Cuban tank battalion was based in Syria. But officials say most foreign-based Cubans operating outside Angola, including servicemen, are on peaceful missions. They say these Cubans could be put to good use at home but, as one official said, Castro has never been content to concentrate on Cuba alone.

He said Castro wants to build up Cuba as the country the Third World looks to for leadership. Another factor, he said, is that Castro finds these far-flung ventures nourishing to his ego.
For years, Castro focused his attention on Latin America, aiding guerrilla groups throughout the region. In the recent past, however, Castro has abandoned the tactic and U.S. officials say there is no evidence of any Cuban meddling in Latin America at present.

The view in Washington is that the Soviet Union prevailed on Castro to leave responsibility for the revolutionary struggle in Latin America to local leftist groups.

Sources say some of Cuba's activities in Third World countries are done at Moscow's suggestion and others at Havana's own initiative.

Most of the Cubans sent on foreign missions come from a peasant background and the groups they deal with in poor countries find the Cubans highly congenial, officials say.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Parents won't take this lying down

DEAR ABBY: I am a 15-year-old girl who is pretty good at solving problems, but I need help with this one.

One evening my parents walked into the front room and found my boyfriend and me lying on the couch. We were just talking.

Ever since then I have heard nothing but remarks like, "The next thing you know, he'll be on top of you!" And, "Don't ever do that again!"

Abby, I've never done anything that would cause them to not trust me, and this upsets my boyfriend and me.

Do you see anything wrong with two people lying on the couch and talking? What would you do if it were your daughter, and you had always been able to trust her?

JUST TALKING

DEAR JUST: I'd tell her that she'd be wise to keep both feet on the floor, and so would her boyfriend that talking in a sleeping position could lead to nightmares she never dreamed could happen. I'd say, "I still trust you. Honey. But people think better when they're sitting up."

DEAR ABBY: My sister-in-law is very sick and she's not expected to live much longer. Do I have to go to her funeral when she dies? It would take your entire column to tell you how much heartache she has caused me over the years because of vicious lies.

Her husband always took her part, so I never cared much for either of them.

Would it look terrible if I stayed home and my husband went to the funeral without me? He really doesn't want to go either, but we're afraid that if he doesn't go, the whole family will criticize us. On the other hand, if we both went, we would feel like a couple of hypocrites.

Thanks for any help you can give me.

DEBATING

DEAR DEBATING: Which could you live with more comfortably? Staying away and being criticized by the family? Or going, and feeling like a couple of hypocrites? The decision is yours.

DEAR ABBY: Possibly "Too D— Tall" (the gal who complained because she was 6 ft. tall) is looking for a man who is 6 ft. plus. However, one frequently sees tall women happily married to men who are shorter. One such couple is the famous composer and conductor, Johnny Green, and his beautiful statuesque wife, Bonnie.

If tall women would lower their level of vision, they might well find some very attractive, eligible men looking up at them with eager interest.

AN L.A. M.D.

DEAR M.D.: Well said.

DEAR ABBY: I read the letter in your column from Dr. Arnold Katz who described what had happened to a 16-month-old patient who discovered a bottle of lye, and ingested just one mouthful!

Being the grandmother of a curious toddler who visits me often, I stopped right then and inspected our home.

Abby, I couldn't believe the number of dangerous poisons and chemicals I had stored underneath my sink! And they could easily have been within the reach of our precious grandchild!

I immediately took your advice and put every hazardous item under lock and key. I can't thank you enough for printing that important warning.

TULSA GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: Don't thank me. Thank Dr. Katz.

New farm feed grain allotments available

Farms without a feed grain allotment may have an allotment for the 1976 program established if they meet eligibility requirements.

An application for a new farm feed grain allotment must be filed with the Fayette County Agriculture Stabilization Conservation Service office at 1503 Columbus Avenue, Washington C.H., by the Feb. 15 deadline.

Chester Phillips, director of the Fayette County ASCS office, said feed grain allotments for 1976 are automatically established for all eligible old feed grain farms. The new farm provisions apply only to farms that do not have allotments.

To be eligible for a new farm allotment:

— Neither the owner nor the operator of the farm may have an interest in any other farm that has a feed grain allotment established for 1976;

— The operator must expect to obtain more than 50 per cent of his 1976 income from farming; and

— The farm for which an application is filed must be suitable for feed grain production without undue erosion.

Any interested producer who can meet these requirements should contact the ASCS office for an application before the filing deadline.

Soviets fight grain shortage

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hard pressed by a skimpy harvest last year, the Soviet Union has trimmed hog and poultry inventories severely in an apparent effort to conserve valuable grain supplies until 1976 crops are ready the Agriculture Department said today.

According to department analysts, Russia's hog inventory on Jan. 1 probably was 20 per cent less than it was a year ago and indications point to at least an 11 per cent cutback in poultry flocks.

The Soviet cattle herd, however, apparently is being given top priority so that it can weather the current grain shortage. Hogs and poultry can be replaced much more quickly than cattle since they breed more quickly and require less time to grow.

"A substantial part of the decrease in hog numbers since Oct. 1 may be explained by reduced breedings in the summer as drought conditions became more evident, rather than by distress slaughter," the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said.

"The peak in distress slaughter apparently occurred in the third quarter of 1975 when implied pork production was up 56 per cent over the 1974 level," the agency said in a weekly "Foreign Agriculture" magazine. "In contrast, production has been down 33 per cent (from a year earlier) during the first two months of the fourth quarter."

While the high rates of slaughter have meant more pork and poultry meat for Soviet consumers, those products have not increased in proportion to the killer of livestock, officials said. That is due to the slaughter of many lightweight or young hogs and birds which means less meat than if they had been allowed to mature.

Cattle inventories by Nov. 1 increased 3 per cent from the same date in 1974, the report said. This included a 2 per cent increase in cows, indicating that planners still are intent on preserving and possibly enlarging the country's cattle breeding herd.

The belt-tightening was caused by widespread crop failure as the result of drought last year. According to official USDA estimates, the 1975 Russian harvest was about 137 million metric tons, about 36 per cent short of Moscow's initial target of 215.7 million.

There is some indication that Russia's grain harvest was even smaller than the USDA officially estimates. Based on computations derived from recent announcements of Russia's five-year plan, the 1975 harvest may have been about 123 million tons, the department said.

In any event, the poor harvest forced the Soviet Union to buy huge quantities of grain from other countries, including 13.2 million tons of wheat and corn from the United States, to help make up part of the deficit in 1975-76. A metric ton is 2,205 pounds.

The annual Corn and Soybean Club banquet will be held Thursday evening January 29 at 6:30 p.m. in the Mahan Building.

The banquet is held each year to recognize the winners in yield and profit categories of the corn and soybean production contests and to discuss the contest results with participants and agronomy committee members.

The banquet also serves as the annual meeting of the Fayette County Agronomy Committee. New officers and directors of the committee will be elected.

Tickets for the banquet are available from agronomy committee directors or at the Extension Office at $4.50 per person. Several seed companies have donated seed corn for door prize drawings.

PORK PRODUCERS and other interested folks should mark their calendars and plan to attend the annual Pork Producer's banquet on Thursday evening February 5. The event will start at 6:30 p.m. in Mahan Building.

Speaker for the Pork banquet will be Brian Baschnagel from the Ohio State football team's powerful backfield. Baschnagel will talk about his experiences with the team and will answer questions from the audience.

Tickets for the banquet are on sale from directors of the Pork Producer's Association or at the Extension Office.

Richard Wood is chairman of the banquet committee and has announced that six hams will be given as door prizes.

THE SECOND meeting in the estate planning series will start at 7:15 p.m. Wednesday, January 28 in the Miami Trace High School cafeteria. The estate planning series is being sponsored jointly by the Fayette County Extension Office and the Miami Trace Vo-Ag Department.

The purpose of the series is to assist farm families in recognizing the importance of proper estate planning to avoid the problems of splitting up a family operation and to point out some of the procedures to be considered in the estate planning process.

The series of meetings is open to anyone interested in obtaining information on the subject of estate planning and property transfer.

THE COMMITTEE for the Winter Pork Carcass Evaluation met last week at the Extension Office and established rules for the annual carcass event. The date for the Winter Carcass contest is Wednesday, February 18, 6:30 p.m. at Producers Livestock Yards in Washington C.H.

The winter carcass evaluation has been expanded this year to provide more opportunities for commercial pork producers to evaluate carcass merit of their swine herd. Previously restricted to barrows the committee has added a class to allow for carcass evaluation of gilts. Participants can make up to two entries in each class this year.

Pork producers interested in making entries in the carcass contest should contact the Extension Office for additional detail.

PLANS ARE currently being made for the first Southern Ohio Graded Bull Sale scheduled for Saturday April 24 at Union Stockyards, Hillsboro. The Southern Ohio Beef Committee, sponsors of the sale, was formed last spring by a group of interested cattlemen and Extension agents who met to take an overall look at the cow-calf situation in Southern Ohio.

The committee which was formed saw a need for a source of good service age bulls to help up grade small commercial cow herds. The committee also recognized that there are several small cow herds which could use a bull for only a couple of calf crops and then must secure a replacement bull.

The bull sale was planned to provide breeders a chance to sell bulls to commercial herds and to provide small herd owners a chance to sell a good "used" bull. Beefcow-calf operators or breeders who want to consign a bull to the sale have until February 1 to make their consignment. A consignment fee of $35.00 must accompany the entry.

All bulls in the sale must have been calved prior to January 1, 1975 and will be inspected and graded. To be eligible for the sale the bull must grade at least choice in muscling, frame, and soundness.

Grain reserves plan studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — An international panel is resuming talks in London on a possible framework for creating world food grain reserves, a plan that one senior Agriculture Department official says has not been warmly received by many of the richer nations.

The three-day meeting starting today, the latest in a series, is being held under the auspices of the International Wheat Council and includes representatives from importing countries as well as those that handle most of the exports in world trade.

Meanwhile, a USDA study says the department needs to become more directly involved in the development of U.S. policy aimed at helping needy countries improve their agriculture.

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Richard E. Bell, who oversees USDA's international affairs and commodity programs, is a U.S. delegate at the London meeting. He told reporters before leaving this weekend that he was "not particularly expecting" any decisions on world food reserves at the meeting.

The U.S. proposal, which Bell said "is still on the table" for discussion, calls for a reserve of 30 million metric tons of wheat and rice. A metric ton is 2,205 pounds.

But the U.S. proposal also calls for each country to acquire and maintain its own share of the reserve and rejects the idea of an internationally held and managed supply.

With larger harvests the past year in many countries, much earlier enthusiasm for establishing world food reserves of grain appears to have declined.

Corn crop set record

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite bad weather in some areas, the nation's corn crop last year squeaked through and produced a record of nearly 5.8 billion bushels, enough so that government analysts are confident of easily meeting domestic and export needs.

The Agriculture Department, in a new estimate Thursday, said the 1975 harvest was 24 per cent larger than the weather-plagued 1974 crop which produced a skimpy 4.7 billion bushels.

In 1880, Ohio had a wheat crop of 49.7 million bushels and only Illinois produced more. The corn crop was 119.9 million bushels.

Julie visits Ohio as designer

CINCINNATI (AP)—While Julie Nixon Eisenhower's father was in the White House, it was a struggle to stay out of the spotlight.

Now the oldest daughter of former President Nixon is back in a spotlight of her own — smaller of course — which lights up her newest career as a designer of embroidery.

She is currently on tour promoting a line of "Julie's Stitchery," an avocation to which she was introduced by her mother-in-law Mamie Eisenhower.

It's not that she enters the world of design as an unknown. The two names Nixon and Eisenhower are instant calling cards, but she isn't about to de-emphasize either that she is the daughter of a former president.

She says she is constantly made aware of her parentage when she first is introduced to people who either love or hate her father.

"That is one of the realities that you have to face when your father was in office," she said. "Still I consider it an honor to be the daughter of a president and I'm proud of his accomplishments."

"When I'm introduced to people they often judge me first because of how they feel about my father, but later when they know me, they begin to judge me for myself."

It's her own accomplishments that she's talking about nowadays. In addition to her needlework, Mrs. Eisenhower recently returned from a trip to China, has done some radio and television interviews and many speeches, with her favorite topics being women in government and volunteerism.

She admits that she could not attempt to start a career while her father was in the White House because of charges of commercialism, but her father's resignation also freed her from another burden.

"You don't know what a relief it is not worry about having secret service around you all the time," she laughed. "For awhile, I couldn't believe they were not there any more."

"At first, I was almost ready to pick up the phone and tell them, 'I'm going to the grocery or I'm going to the drug store,' but then I remembered I didn't have to do that anymore."

"For a year after my father left the White House, I felt like a new person. Now I'm trying to live like everyone else."

Mrs. Eisenhower says her parents are taking a keen interest in her new career, and although an invitation to a news conference, asks that questions be restricted to the promotion of "Julie's Stitchery," she does not shy away from questions about her father.

"I call him every two days or every day, depending on what I'm doing," she said. "When I called home and said I was in Cincinnati, my dad reminded me that I was near where the disaster took place in Xenia. He likes to know where I am and what I'm doing."

"He spends most of his time working on his book, and because it is an election year, I think he's going to stay in the background because he feels it would be better. We just try to live from day-to-day, do you know what I mean?"

Roses, and Other Things

By ROSEY

Roses, like people, are highly adaptable to variations in environment, but will do best when conditions are most to their liking. Roses can grow in almost any kind of soil, with almost any degree of soil sweetness or acidity. They prefer a good, rich, loamy soil slightly on the acid (sour) side; the degree of sourness will have some bearing on the color of the blooms. The blue-hues of roses are most pronounced just under a neutral acidity, while those with no blue pigment generally are more vivid as the acidity increases. Most reds have a certain amount of blue present also, so become darker as acidity decreases and more vivid as it increases. One common fault of many persons is to assume that all soil needs to be limed at regular intervals—this depends upon the soil and also upon the crop you are growing. With roses you can drastically reduce results if lime makes the soil too sweet; the safest idea is to initially do (or have done) a soil test. The average person can do this himself, with no special training, and get sufficiently accurate results for home gardening purposes. The simplest tests show only the degree of acidity, while others can also indicate nitrogen, phosphorus, potash, and even humus content; many will also indicate what must be added to your soil, and how much per square foot, to change it to the results you desire.

For the best results in growing roses, you will want a soil acidity reading from 6.5 down to 5.5; below this point too many of your soil nutrients are at least partially locked into the soil. If your test results show a reading below 5.5, the most common correction procedure is to add lime. If it is above 6.5, you can add copperas, aluminum sulfate, or sulfur. Both the copperas and the aluminum sulfate will reduce the reading rapidly, but both will leach out in an average season, so must be replaced again the next spring; if copperas is used, it will have the added advantage of providing iron to your soil in a form available to the plant. Sulfur acts more slowly but has the advantage of lasting for several seasons; in addition, it acts as a fungicide and an insecticide against many of the disease and insects forms which will attempt to overwinter in your soil. I have found it to be advantageous to combine sulfur with one of the other two, to give both a rapid and also a prolonged effect, but if you mix them, be sure to reduce the recommended amount of each, or you will end up with your soil more sour than you intend it to be.

A distinct advantage of planting your roses in more than one bed is that you can then individualize the degree of acidity of each area, and plant your various bushes in the bed which will then be most effective in bringing out the best color features of the bloom.

Birthday party honors Mrs. Ritenour

Approximately 35 residents of Court House Manor were entertained Thursday afternoon by members of the Community Action Nutrition Group, Mrs. Gladys Johns, pianist, Mrs. Birtie Grabill, who played the spoons, Harry Stoughton, banjo, and Floyd Dowler, guitarist and harmonica player. There are 100 patients at the Manor, but only 35 were able to join the entertainment group.

Refreshments were served and the afternoon was spent visiting.

Name omitted

The name of Mrs. Cleve Shough was inadvertently omitted from the list of invited guests for Mrs. Dena Haines birthday party given recently.

WHEN COMPANY COMES — An interesting dip to serve with vegetables—radishes, zucchini, carrots and celery.

Cooks encouraged to improvise

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press
Food Editor

When you meet up with a good recipe, hang onto it! If you feel, after you have served the dish a good many times, that you are offering "the same old thing," give yourself the fun of improvising on it.

Here's how we followed our own advice. Years ago we found a recipe for a delicious combination that had an all sourcream base and that we used as a dressing for cucumber salad and a sauce for chilled poached fish. Recently when we wanted a "different" dip to serve with raw vegetables, we used mayonnaise for half the sour cream and added a topping of toasted sesame seed — and here's the recipe.

BLUE RIDGE DIP

- 1/2 cup commercial sour cream
- 1/2 cup real mayonnaise
- 1/2 cup (9 or 10) small pimiento-stuffed green olives, minced
- 2 tablespoons minced parsley
- 2 tablespoons minced scallion
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 1/2 teaspoon white pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
- 2 tablespoons toasted sesame seed, if desired

Stir together all the ingredients except the sesame seed. Cover and chill for several hours or overnight to allow flavors to blend. Stir lightly and turn into a small serving bowl; sprinkle with the sesame seed if used. Makes 1 1/2 cups. Nice served with radishes, par-boiled zucchini sticks, carrot curls and celery wedges. To toast the small amount of sesame seed, turn it into a small skillet and stir constantly over low heat just until it turns color — a matter of a few minutes.

SPECIAL TOUCHES — Begin the day with a special meal including marinated vegetable platter and chicken tetrazzina, with broccoli and herbed lemon butter.

Home entertaining with right price tag

Do you want to feed friends with finesse... but for less? It may sound like a herculean task to keep elegance and budget in balance. It may even frighten a few weak-hearted cooks who think, "Oh, no, here comes the extra work." The fact is that a well-planned menu is the right way to "make it happen." Be sure to serve the meal buffet style, too, so that it is easier on the hostess.

Start the buffet with a Marinated Vegetable Platter. The selection of vegetables should include good buys at the market plus the elegance of one extravagant vegetable, artichoke hearts. The dressing will speak for itself in telling your guests that it's specially homemade. As the entree prepare Chicken Tetrazzini — a sumptuous dish of chicken and sauteed mushrooms in a rich cream sauce with Parmesan cheese atop. It won't look budget in the slightest, and yet the meat will go further because it is baked over that favorite thin Italian pasta, linguini. Broccoli and Herbed Lemon Butter is a simple yet lovely way to complete the main course.

A few special touches will make the meal really fine. The first begins in the preparation by using Ac'cent Flavor Enhancer to blend and bring out the fullest flavor of each dish. Another important touch is to garnish dishes attractively — pimiento strips on the broccoli and a golden-browned cheese and paprika topping baked on the Tetrazzini. A spinach underliner for the Vegetable Platter gives this dish richness in color and flavor at a cost lower than lettuce at average prices. So don't be dismayed by the thought of a dinner party — not when it can be done economically with style for eight people at less than $20.00 total — main course through dessert.

MARINATED VEGETABLE PLATTER

- Marinade
- 1 cup vegetable oil
  - 1/2 cup tarragon wine vinegar
  - 1 teaspoon sugar
  - 1 teaspoon instant minced onion
  - 1/2 teaspoon Ac'cent Flavor Enhancer
  - 1/2 teaspoon parsley flakes
  - 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
  - 1/4 teaspoon dried leaf oregano
  - 1/8 teaspoon garlic powder

Vegetable Platter

- 1 9-ounce package frozen artichoke hearts
- 1 16-ounce can whole baby carrots, drained
- 1 10-ounce package spinach leaves, washed and trimmed
- 1 pint cherry tomatoes, washed and drained
- 1 7 1/4-ounce can ripe olives, drained
- 3 ribs celery, cut into 2-inch pieces

In a small bowl mix all ingredients for marinade; pour half of mixture into a second bowl. In a saucepan cook artichoke hearts in boiling salted water as directed on package. Drain and add to marinade in one bowl. Add carrots to second bowl. Allow to sit at room temperature for three to four hours; drain. Line serving platter with spinach and arrange artichokes, carrots, tomatoes, olives and celery over spinach leaves. Chill. Pour marinade over vegetables as a dressing. Makes 8 servings.

CHICKEN TETRAZZINA

- 1 1/4 pounds linguini
  - 1/2 cup butter or margarine, divided
  - 1 small onion, chopped
  - 3/4 pound fresh mushrooms, sliced
  - 2 tablespoons lemon juice
  - 1/4 cup flour
  - 2 cups chicken broth
  - 1-3 cup dry sherry
  - 1 cup heavy cream
  - 5 cups cubed cooked chicken or turkey
  - 1/2 cup sliced almonds
  - 1 teaspoon Ac'cent Flavor Enhancer
  - 1 teaspoon salt
  - 1/2 teaspoon pepper
  - 1/4 teaspoon paprika
  - 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
  - 3/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
- Cook linguini as package directs; drain, place in greased 13 x 9-inch baking dish. Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

Meanwhile, melt 1/4 cup butter in a large saucepan over medium heat. Add onion and mushrooms; cook 5 minutes. Sprinkle with lemon juice. Remove and reserve. In same skillet melt remaining butter and blend in flour. Cook over low heat 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Gradually stir in chicken broth and sherry, and cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Stir in cream. Add chicken, almonds, mushroom mixture, flavor enhancer, salt, pepper, paprika, and nutmeg. Spoon over linguini. Sprinkle with cheese and additional paprika. Bake 30 to 40 minutes. Makes 8 servings.

BROCCOLI AND HERBED LEMON BUTTER

- 2 10-ounce packages frozen broccoli
  - 1/2 cup butter or margarine
  - 1 1/2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
  - 4 teaspoons lemon juice
  - 1/2 teaspoon salt
  - 3/4 teaspoon Ac'cent Flavor Enhancer
  - 1/2 teaspoon dried leaf oregano
  - Pimiento strips
- In a saucepan, cook broccoli in boiling salted water as directed on package. Meanwhile, in another saucepan, melt butter and stir in seasonings. Cook over low heat 5 minutes. Drain broccoli and place in serving bowl. Pour butter mixture over vegetables and garnish with pimiento strips. Makes 8 servings.

Lions hit century mark

WCH buries Unioto

By MARK REA
Record-Herald Sports Writer

When looking at the basketball floor at the Washington Senior High School gym, you can almost see the imprint of an entire Unioto Sherman team.

Last night, they were stomped into the hardwood by the Washington C.H. Blue Lions by an unbelievable 117-45 score. The Lions annihilated the Tanks in every phase of the game while blasting them by a 72 point margin.

The Blue Lions could do no wrong as they landed six players in double figures. Sophomore sensation John Denen led Court House with 23 points and the rest of the men in double figures were seniors. Doug Phillips collected 19, Scott Sefton and Chuck Byrd each tallied 14, Eddie DeWees tossed in 11, and Ken Upthegrove stuffed in 10.

As for the other four players on the team, they didn't have too bad a time either. Dee Hart Foster scored eight points while Randy Jamison, Sam

McClendon, and Mark Heiny all had six counters.

Washington had a phenomenal shooting percentage from the floor as they made 50 out of 82 field goal attempts for 60.9 per cent. As for the Shermans, they attempted about half as many field goals (45) and made only 33.3 per cent of them.

Every statistic weighed as heavily as the score in the Lions' favor. They out-rebounded Unioto 49-25, chalked up 19 assists to the Shermans' two, stole the ball 18 times to just one for the Tanks, and committed only 10 turnovers while Unioto gave the ball away an astronomical 35 times.

Unioto, believe it or not, actually tried out their famous stall tactics at the beginning of the game but the pressure by Byrd and Foster proved to be too much for their dribbling ability.

Also proving too much for the Tanks' ability was Denen and Phillips who collected 13 of Washington's 19 first quarter points. The initial period was a mirror of things yet to come as Court House led 19-5.

The second quarter saw Washington get their highest point total in one quarter for the season with 31. That record didn't last long though, as they scored 39 in the final quarter.

Washington head coach Gary Shaffer made wholesale replacements in the second period and by the middle of the quarter the bench was cleared. Practically everyone on the team contributed points in that quarter with Denen scoring the most with eight. The score at halftime was 50-16.

The third quarter showed no letup in the Lion offensive machine as they went back to work after the 15 minute intermission and scored 28 more points. Sefton and DeWees handled the brunt of the attack in the third frame, scoring 10 and eight points, respectively. Heiny and Jamison each tallied four in the period. With one period to go, the Lions led 78-26.

After almost two quarters of rest, the starters came back into the game and finished off the already dying Shermans. Phillips tossed in 10 points in the quarter including a 20-footer that broke the century mark for the first time since 1974 when Washington C.H. beat Wilmington 101-55. In addition, Denen threw in nine more tallies, Upthegrove scored eight, and Byrd and Foster had six points in the final period. The game came to a close with the Lions winning, 117-45.

Unioto failed to get anyone in double figures but they had a few that came close. Steve Barr, who also played in the reserve game, and Garry Proehl each scored eight points while Steve Uhrig tallied seven before fouling out.

The Lions now 7-4 overall and 6-3 in the SCOL, go in search of another league win next Friday against Greenfield McClain in the McClain gym. Starting time for the reserve game will be 6:30 p.m.

Lion reserves mimic varsity

The Washington C.H. Blue Lions walked all over the Unioto Sherman reserves as they smashed the Tanks, 70-24. With the combined totals of the varsity and the reserve scores, Court House outscored Unioto last night 187-69.

The Lions, who have lately had trouble giving games away on fouls, eliminated that problem by not yielding a single point from the charity stripe. Mark Burke led the Lions to the victory with 18 points and Tom Dean and Jeff DeWeese also scored in double figures; Dean with 13 and DeWeese with 10.

The only players close to doubles for Unioto were Steve Barr and Rick Caudill who had six each.

The Lions, now 9-2 overall and 8-1 in the league, travel to meet Greenfield next Friday night. Game time will be 6:30 p.m.

Bexley jumps past Miami Trace cagers

By PHIL LEWIS

Record-Herald Sports Editor

Although Bexley's junior center Larry Wilson spends his time on the track team in the spring near the high jump pit, he showed everybody at Miami Trace High School Friday night that he can leap in the winter as well.

The 6-2 pivotman, who cleared 6-6 last spring as a sophomore track star, tossed in 24 points — 12 of those in the last quarter — and pulled 18 rebounds to power Bexley to a 87-78 win over the Panthers.

Miami Trace trailed by only two points going into the final quarter against the Columbus powerhouse, but Wilson started to do his thing with a basketball — score.

He hit on three straight buckets in the opening minute of the final period, and the Panthers were unable to come back.

"There's nothing to be ashamed of," the Miami Trace coaching staff agreed after the non-league loss which dropped the Panthers to 6-6 on the season.

Bexley was superb shooting a scorching 59 per cent from the field, committing only eight turnovers and turning in a well-played and exciting performance.

The Panthers were no slouches either on the court, but when the going got tough, they were unable to match Wilson's play underneath.

"We don't have the big kid," Coach John Woolums said after the loss even though he was pleased with the play of his two centers, Wendell Logan and Bill Hanners, who combined for 22 points.

The 6-2 Wilson is far from being a one-man team, however, and the Panthers had to keep close eyes on the Lions two guards, Todd Millard and Phil Wright.

Millard, who is the son of the Bexley coach, poured in 23 points and Wright added 19. Most of Millard's came in the first half, and Wright picked up more than half of his total from the freethrow line while setting a Bexley school record with 13 assists.

The Panthers started the game with a man-to-man defense, but moved into a zone at the beginning of the second half. Woolums made the defensive move not only to keep Wilson boxed off the boards, but to take away the Bexley "moving" picks which were leaving the sharpshooting Millard open.

The strategy seemed to work in the third period as the Panthers shutout Millard and held Wilson to just one basket allowing the Panthers to move within two points going into the fourth quarter.

In fact, the Panthers took the lead for a brief period of time in the third stanza when Wilson was called for goal tending for the second time on a shot by Art Schlichter.

Bexley came back to take a two point lead at 61-59, on a rare four-point play by Wright. The senior guard was going to the basket for a layup and was fouled by Schlichter. The officials ruled the Trace player came underneath the driving Wright and was charged with an intentional foul which is a two-shot penalty. Wright made the layup and also hit the two freethrows and the Panthers never got closer.

Fouls again hurt the Panthers as Bexley hit 15 of 25 freethrows to pad the winning margin.

"We reach in and make silly fouls," Woolums said of his team which scored three more field goals than the opposition Tuesday night and still lost by five points.

"The charging fouls on the fast break hurt early in the game. We turn around and put the ball to the floor before looking down court," Woolums added stating that the proper procedure is done just the opposite way.

Schlichter and Dan Gifford led the Panther attack with 16 points apiece. Logan, who started his first game in a month replacing Gifford in the first five, added 14 points.

"He hasn't been getting the rebounds," Woolums said of Gifford and decided to start Logan, who has been the top rebounder in practice.

Gifford got his share last night, however, coming off the bench to pull 10 caroms. Allan Conner was second in the rebounding department with nine and he also scored 12 points.

Guard Rod Garringer was also in double figures for the Panthers scoring all 12 of this points in the second half. The Panthers shot a respectable 49 per cent from the floor for the evening and hit on eight of 11 freethrows to top Bexley percentage-wise in that department.

The Panthers get back to the South Central Ohio League title race next Friday against Hillsboro on the Indians homecourt.

GOAL TENDING — Bexley's Larry Wilson goes high to pin the ball on the backboard as the Panthers Dan Gifford attempts a layup. Wilson was called for goal tending twice in the game while leading his team in rebounding and scoring. Gifford also led the Panthers in the two departments. (Ed Summers photo)

Ohio high school gridder lavished with college gifts?

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan State University's student newspaper quoted a source Friday who said an Ohio high school football star was lavished with expensive gifts and money by MSU football recruiters in 1973.

The Michigan State News reported that Robert Robertson was the object of illegal recruiting tactics when he was a senior at Barberton, Ohio, High School.

Robertson was one of two former Ohio State University football players who testified before the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) in its probe of alleged violations by MSU's football staff.

"Bob was given various gifts from the coaches," said a source quoted by the student paper. "He got such things as coats, rings, shoes and other clothing articles.

"The money was flowing all the time. I don't know exactly how much Bob got at any specific time, but over a period of several months I would estimate it was close to $1,000," the source was quoted as saying.

Robertson reportedly had contacts with both head football coach Denny Stolz, who remembered trying to recruit him, and assistant coach Howard Weyers, who is under particular scrutiny in the NCAA probe.

Weyers' attorney, Anthony DeCello, was present Sunday when MSU appealed an NCAA decision that reportedly found the university guilty on several of some 70 illegal recruiting counts leveled last April. Weyers' job reportedly is in jeopardy.

The student paper's source also said high school players at a post-season all-star game once began singing "Here Comes Santa Claus" as Weyers approached.

After the NCAA probe of MSU broke, Barberton High School faculty members were asked by letter if they had ever seen Robertson wearing the clothing he allegedly received from MSU coaches, sources said.

Barberton track coach Glenn Davis said he was asked if he had seen Robertson wearing a new pair of track shoes he had supposedly received from MSU. Davis replied to MSU officials that he had not.

Robertson dropped out of Ohio State after accepting a football scholarship there in 1974 and is now reportedly attending a junior college.

Mr. George Shapter
City Manager
City of Washington
Washington Court House, Ohio

Dear Mr. Shapter:

The Citizens Study Committee, after study of the information relevant to the City of Washington's financial situation, has come to some conclusions. These are outlined below:

1. The General Fund of the City budget is in serious trouble.
2. There are three ways to balance the budget;
  - a. make approximately $130,494 in cuts or
  - b. raise additional revenues or
  - c. some combination of cuts and additional revenues.
3. There is no way to cut $130,494 from the budget without seriously harming the police and fire departments through firing or non-rehiring of personnel. Reduction of fire personnel would result in higher insurance rates. Reduction of personnel would harm morale and could result in the loss of capable and trained personnel.
4. No matter what small cuts could be made, the budget cannot be balanced without reducing personnel over 1975.
5. While the Committee feels that responsible cuts should be made when those cuts do not affect necessary City operations, the Committee does not favor reducing personnel.
6. Therefore, the Committee has concluded that the City needs additional revenues in the 1976 fiscal year.
7. There are two ways for the City to raise revenues;
  - a. through property tax and
  - b. through an income tax.
8. If a property tax were put on the ballot and if it were approved by the voters, it would not generate any money for the City in 1976.
9. If the City is to raise the revenue necessary in 1976 so as not to reduce personnel, the only alternative left open is for City Council to vote an income tax.
10. Since the Committee feels that we cannot let vital City services disintegrate and since there are simply no other choices available in 1976 except for Council to vote an income tax, the Committee has concluded that it will not oppose Council if it votes a one-half percent income tax.
11. A one-half percent income tax would raise about $150,000 in 1976 if initiated at an early date according to the City Manager.
12. The Committee is not in favor of citizen petitions designed to convince City Council that an income tax is desired. While we do recognize that some members of the Council have been made to feel somewhat unpopular by previous voting of an income tax and that some are reluctant to do it again, yet we are of the opinion that the financial state of the City is the responsibility of Council and that Council should do what is necessary. Since it is impossible for less than a one per cent income tax to be placed on the ballot according to the Attorney General's Opinion 2322, P. 412 (1950), the voting of a one-half per cent tax would have to be undertaken by Council alone.
13. Two new factors in the financial picture of the City are worth noting:
  - a. First, we have now the kind of financial records that we can trust to be accurate. We do not have several sets of figures which, in the past, have raised questions in the minds of citizens.
  - b. Second, the Citizens study Committee will aid Council in getting the real facts before the public. In the past, there has not been a means of getting unbiased facts before the citizens.
14. Therefore, the Committee will not oppose Council in voting a one-half per cent income tax and will assist Council in getting the financial facts of the City before the citizens.

Sincerely,
Robert Angus

Hillsboro upsets Wilmington

Moore too much for McClain

CIRCLEVILLE — Greenfield McClain gave the league leading Circleville Tigers a run for their money Friday night, but center George Moore was too much to handle as McClain dropped an important, 58-52, contest. McClain grabbed an early 14-8 first period lead and the score was knotted at 28 apiece going into the second half when Moore began to dominate the contest.

The Circleville pivot man finished the game with 27 points, 18 rebounds and five steals while holding McClain center, Steve Harvey, to nine points.

McClain held the rest of the Tigers to well below their averages as forward Biff Bumgarner tallied only 12 points and guard Mike McCoy hit only 10.

Guard Jim Jones led Greenfield's scoring with 14 counters and forward Chris Nelson added 13 points.

In the other SCOL contest Friday night, Hillsboro upset the Wilmington Hurricane for the second time this year.

The Indians overcame a seven-point first quarter deficit and went on to a 58-56 victory behind Rick Seeling and Tim Fuller.

The two Indian frontliners combined for 37 points in the game that knocked the Hurricane out of third place in the league.

Center Gary Williams led the Hurricane attack with 15 points and Steve Williams was the only other Wilmington player in double figures with 10 points.

NEW HOME VALUE!

This attractive, brick-front, ranch home on one half acre just southeast of Wash. C. H. will please both your needs and your pocketbook! Three nice bedrooms and a beautiful bath. A roomy kitchen equipped with handsome cabinets and range hood as well as dining area and glass door to patio. Attached, finished garage and a handy utility room. This fully insulated and carpeted home offered for just $26,000, so phone 335-2021 soon for a look!

Although government agencies report the tax break was an apparent flop as far as increasing new home sales — its intended purpose — the people who did buy new homes may be entitled to take the credit on their 1975 tax returns.

The credit was the idea of Senate Democrats and was opposed by President Ford, even though he accepted it as part of the overall tax reduction package for 1975. It is unlikely to be renewed for 1976, however.

The credit is equal to 5 per cent of the purchase price of a new home up to a maximum of $2,000 if the following conditions were met:

—The new home must have been built or under construction before March 26, 1975.

—It must have been acquired and occupied after March 12, 1975.

—The price paid must have been the lowest asked by the seller since Feb. 28, 1975.

The house didn't have to be occupied during 1975, but a binding purchase contract must have been entered into before
Jan. 1, 1976, in order to qualify.

If the taxpayer acquired the home in 1975, but does not occupy it until 1976, then the credit is allowable on his or her tax return for 1976, not 1975.

The home must be the taxpayer's principal place of residence. House trailers and house boats can qualify if they are the principal place of residence.

When the tax legislation went into effect, the price requirement was that the price be the lowest ever. But Congress amended this after sellers complained the restriction was unrealistic because of the high inflation of the past few years.

Taxpayers claiming the credit must use the long 1040 form.
In addition, they must attach a separate form provided by IRS and a certificate from the seller certifying that the home met the date and price requirements.

Since there is an obvious potential for fraud in this area, the tax legislation provides for both civil and criminal penalties against a seller who provides fraudulent information.

The buyer is still entitled to the credit even if fraud was committed by the seller.

The estimated cost to the government of the credit is $600 million.

One important note: If the homebuyer has realized a gain from the sale of his previous home, this gain must be subtracted from the purchase price of the new home before the 5 per cent credit is computed.

Another change in the tax laws affecting buyers of homes is an extension of the time allowed to buy a new home in order to defer a tax on any gain in the sale of the old home.

The period has been increased to two years, either before or after the sale of the old home, instead of 18 months, as before. But the new extension applies only to sales of homes after Dec. 31, 1974.

The time period for a person to start building a new home has been increased from one year to 18 months after sale of the old home, with another two years allowed for occupancy of the built home, rather than 18 months as before.

In all cases, the home must

Individual Retirement Plans Offer Savings

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is the fifth in a series of five articles entitled "Coping With Your Income Tax." They were written to help taxpayers prepare their 1975 tax returns.

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A sizable tax break is possible for 1975 for people who invested in their own individual retirement accounts under a new program that went into effect during the year.

Taxpayers who want the most for their earnings, and to keep taxes to a minimum, should make themselves familiar with this program. Although it's too late now to start for 1975, it can be joined in 1976 and in future years.

All of the wide range of deductions should be closely checked by taxpayers in deciding whether they can do best by itemizing or claiming the standard deductions.

Many taxpayers overlook such expenses as taxi fares to a doctor's office, which can be included in itemized deductions.
IRS spokesmen say. Even whiskey, if prescribed by a doctor to ease an ailment, can be itemized as a deductible medical expense.

But the retirement investments are deductible whether the taxpayer itemizes or takes the standard deduc-tion.

The Individual Retirement Savings Program, as it is officially known, was set up by Congress to help people create their own retirement benefits if they are not covered by a qualified retirement plan.

One congressional backer of the legislation said 53 per cent of the American work force had not been covered by retirement programs, including 88 per cent of the nation's working women.

The program allows a participant to deduct up to $1,500 an-

Three directors named since last annual meet

First Federal shows record growth

Assets of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Washington C.H. at the end of 1975 reached $26,427,377.84. The $26 million figure was an increase of 20 per cent over a year ago, Harold H. Thompson, executive vice president and secretary, reported at the annual meeting of members.

Thompson said that 1975 "was the greatest growth year ever experienced," exceeding 1974 by $1,579,032.92. The record growth was accomplished despite the uncertainty which has surrounded the nation's economic recovery, Thompson said.

It was reported by Thompson that three new directors were appointed since the last annual meeting to fill vacancies created by the deaths of Edmond S. Woodmansee, R.M. (Bud) Meriweather, and the change of status of A.H. Finley to director emeritus.

Washington C.H. attorney John S. Bath, 726 Fairway Drive, was appointed to complete the term of Mr. Woodmansee, who had been a director since 1955 and Jack Kellough, 10 Colonial Court, was appointed to replace Finley, who had been a director since 1938.

Mrs. Constance Meriweather, 940 Clinton Ave., was appointed to fill the unexpired term of her late husband, R.M. (Bud) Meriweather. Mrs. Meriweather becomes the first woman director in the history of the association.

Directors re-elected were W.A. Lovell and David L. Baughn. Other members of the board are W.F. Rettig and Thompson.

First Federal paid a record amount of interest to its savings depositors, $1,318,613.96, and added $221,368.58 to its reserves, bringing the total reserves up to $2,196,558.87, which far exceeds the statutory requirements, Thompson said.

"While savings deposits were generally up for most financial institutions for this year," Thompson said, "We were contending with a continuation of the inflation, the recession and a tendency in the latter part of the year for our savers to seek investments paying a higher rate."

"We look forward to our bicentennial year and hope that the new year will bring us some respite in our economic problems, and that we will receive enough savings deposits to allow us to take care of the mortgage lending needs of this community," he said. Thompson reported that in 1975 First Federal originated 430 mortgage loans amounting to $8,792,600, to buy, build and improve homes, apartments and commercial properties in Washington C.H. and Fayette County. After loan repayments and payoffs, a net increase of $3,319,347 was reported. Total mortgage loans on the books amounted to $23,033,547.24, representing 1,598 loans. The net increase in loans was also a new high for the association.

"We are now paying on our savings accounts and certificates of deposit the highest rates ever, and the highest allowed by law," Thompson pointed out.

"All in all, 1975 was an excellent year for attracting new savings and lending mortgage money for the purchase and construction of residential and commercial properties, but, like all businesses, operating costs have increased equally as much due to inflation, which is the biggest enemy of all businesses," Thompson added.

At the reorganizational meeting immediately following the membership meeting, the results of the election of directors were announced and Lovell, Baughn and Bath were sworn into office.

Officers elected for 1976 were Rettig, chairman of the board; Lovell, president; Baughn, first vice president; Kellough, second vice president; Thompson, executive vice president and secretary; Larry L. Long, assistant secretary; James R. Smith, treasurer; Louise D. Pope, assistant treasurer; Carolyn Kay Walker, head teller, and Bath, attorney.

Full-time and part-time staff and their duties are Thompson, managing officer; Long, loan officer; Smith, bookkeeper; Mrs. Pope, savings officer and data controller; Carole Arnold, insurance and loan file clerk; Mrs. Walker, head teller; Wilma Stewart, teller; Pamela Smith, teller; Linda Highfield, teller, and Ann B. Thompson, part-time office employee.

Geritol generation runs China

By JOHN RODERICK
Associated Press Writer
TOKYO (AP) — China may well have the liveliest functioning gerontocracy around, an inspiration to senior citizens anywhere. Among the Chinese, age is no bar to service. In fact it is a positive asset.

The death last week of Chinese Premier Chou En-lai at the age of 78 underscored this fact. He had been in active command to the age of 76, when cancer struck him down. Even from his hospital room he had, until only a few months ago, kept his hands on the government operation.

Communist Chairman Mao Tse-tung is 82 and though he isn't exactly jumping through hoops or even playing table tennis as he once did, those who meet him say his mind is still agile. And nothing much is done in China without his approval.

The average age of the 16 surviving members of the ruling Communist party Politburo is 66. The oldest member is Chu Teh, chairman of the National Peoples' Congress Standing Committee, who is 89.

The youngest, Wang Hungwen, the onetime Shanghai factory worker and whiz kid of Chinese politics, is an almost boyish 39. Other youngsters include Chang Chun-chiao, a member of the Politburo Standing Committee, and Yao wenyuan, both in their 50's.

But they are the exceptions. Until recently five of the six men who counted most — Mao and the five partygen — were over 70. Kang Sheng, who died a few weeks ago, was 77. Defense Minister Yeh Chien-ying is 76 and first Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, likely to be the new premier, is close to 72. With Kang and Chou gone there are three vice chairmen left, one of them Wang Hung-wen.

It is not impossible that when the Central Committee meets Chu Teh may be named to fill one of the vacancies, with a younger man, probably Chang Chun-chiao, the other.

The death of Chou and of former acting president Tung Piwu, 90, last April has left two holes in the nine-member lineup of the Politburo Standing Committee. Chu Teh already is on that body and it is not impossible that Mao's wife, Chiang Ching, 61, will move up along with her protegee, Yao Wen-yuan.

A Confucian respect for age and presumed wisdom is one of the reasons why the old are not only suffered but respected and used in the proletarian People's Republic.

Another is the fact that those in power are culminating lifetimes of revolution, some of them having fought the party's battles for as much as half a century.

In 1976, Mao's policy is to have the old, the middle-aged and the young in positions of power. But for a few years yet the old will continue to weigh heavily in the political scales.

Truce said holding in Beirut

PLO troops occupy areas of Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Palestine Liberation Army soldiers occupied a large part of eastern Lebanon today and policed Moslem-controlled western Beirut, warning that looters would be shot on sight.

The Palestinians rolled into the Lebanese capital in a convoy of Russian trucks to enforce a Syrian-negotiated ceasefire between warring Christians and Moslems. The truce appeared to be holding.

A European diplomat said he saw a Palestinian shoot and kill one looter near Spinneys, Beirut's largest department store, which had been stripped bare by looters. Six looters were reported killed Thursday, the day the cease-fire became effective.

A Lebanese military spokesman reported only "scattered, isolated incidents" in the ceasefire, but at least 14 persons were reported killed and another 22 wounded. More than 9,000 have been killed in the nine-month-old civil war.

Beirut airport reopened Friday for the first time in a week, and sources said the first plane to land carried a team of Syrian army officers to help supervise the cease-fire.

The Palestinian army units patrolling Beirut streets and occupying much of eastern Lebanon had crossed the border from Syria earlier in the week.

Associated Press correspondent Edward Cody toured eastern Lebanon, and said battle-hardened Palestinian soldiers were running the area like conquered territory.

"We are masters of all the strategic military points," said Abu Amjad, battle zone political officer for the Popular Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine.

"We will not leave before making sure that the national demands of the Lebanese progressive forces are satisfied," He referred to the Syrian-sponsored cease-fire agreement designed to equalize Christian and Moslem political power.

Palestinian spokesmen said an agreement to let the PLA soldiers patrol Beirut had been worked out by Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam; Yasir Arafat, head of the PLA's parent Palestine Liberation Organization; and leftwing Moslem leaders.

The Lebanese government made no comment on the agreement, which was announced on state-run television and radio. But the right-wing Phalange party, which has the largest of the Christian militias, said the agreement violated Lebanese sovereignty.

Lebanese police pulled out of western Beirut several days ago.

The truce agreement established a commission of two ranking officers from the Lebanese, Syrian and Palestinian armies that is to set guidelines for a political settlement.

Four candidates challenge Wallace

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Four candidates challenged Alabama Gov. George Wallace today in Mississippi's precinct caucuses, the second such preliminary test for Democratic presidential hopefuls.

Democrats planned to gather at 2,133 locations across the state to begin a complicated process of selecting delegates to the party's national convention this summer. Party officials say it may be several days before the results are known.

Mississippi will have only 24 of the 3,008 national convention votes, but the state has attracted attention because its delegate selection begins so early in the election year and because it is the first confrontation between Wallace and two other Southerners.

Similar caucuses were held in Iowa last week and nearly 40 per cent of that state's delegates were not committed to any candidate. Many Mississippians were expected to follow the same route.

Most of the candidates in Mississippi have acknowledged that Wallace, who got 68 per cent of the state's vote in the 1968 election, would be the man to beat today.

The other Southerners — former Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas — have said they felt they would give Wallace a strong run in Mississippi's caucuses. Carter got more delegate support than any other candidate in Iowa, but Wallace was not among those who campaigned there.

Sargent Shriver, the Democrats' 1972 vice presidential candidate, and former Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma have also campaigned for delegate votes here.

The rules allow any eligible Democratic voter to attend the caucus at his precinct and declare a preference for a candidate or declare himself uncommitted.

Groups of voters favoring one candidate — or choosing the uncommitted course — that get support from at least 15 per cent of the total attendance at each precinct will send delegates to county conventions.

Representation at the county level will be proportional to support at the precinct caucuses. Thus, if one candidate has 50 per cent of the vote at the precinct level, he will have half the precinct's votes at the county convention.

At the county conventions on Feb. 14, delegates will be chosen to Feb. 21 congressional district conventions.

Nineteen national convention delegates will be chosen at the congressional district level. The other five will be selected at large at a state convention on Feb. 29.

Panel to question Nixon about Chile

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Intelligence Committee will question former President Richard M. Nixon about U.S. operations against Chile, but it has decided not to ask entertainer Frank Sinatra about a woman associated with John F. Kennedy and organized crime figures.

The committee voted Friday to submit a series of written questions to the former president about U.S. efforts to overthrow Chilean President Salvador Allende and about the so-called Houston plan for domestic intelligence gathering, chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, said.

But Church said the committee saw no reason to question Sinatra about a possible link between President John F. Kennedy and the Mafia in a CIA plot to kill Cuba's Fidel Castro.

Sinatra had been named as the "mutual friend" who introduced Kennedy to Judith Campbell Exner, a California woman who also knew two underworld figures involved in a CIA plot to kill Castro.

Committee members questioned Mrs. Exner last summer and decided she had not been used to relay information between Kennedy and the two underworld figures, Sam Giancana and John Rosselli.

Church said the decision to submit written questions to Nixon was "the best available" (solution) given the length of time remaining for the panel to complete its investigation. The committee is scheduled to end its business on Feb. 29.

Nixon earlier refused to testify before the entire committee, saying he would talk in secret to the panel's ranking members. The committee rejected that proposal.

Meanwhile, the House Intelligence Committee approved its final report after cutting out secrets President Ford's advisors said might endanger agents and embarrass the nation diplomatically.

Chairman Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., said the committee also deleted "unduly critical" comments about Ford administration officials, including Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

In another development, a former television reporter's claim that Walter Cronkite, John Chancellor and other prominent television figures are named in a list of journalists who have co-operated with the CIA was widely denied.

Both Chancellor, anchorman for the "NBC Nightly News," and Cronkite, anchorman and managing editor of the "CBS Evening News," flatly denied any relationship with the CIA.

The claim they were on the list was made by Sam A. Jaffe, a former correspondent for CBS and ABC news. Jaffe said in television interviews Friday that he had learned of the list from the House Intelligence Committee as well as from former ABC correspondent Bill Gill.

Both Gill and A. Searle Field, chief counsel for the House panel, denied Jaffe's claim. Jaffe also had said that former Nixon speechwriter Patrick Buchanan had confirmed the existence of the list, but Buchanan denied it.

Rural Americans tough on crime

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new poll described as "a unique look into small town America" may fuel the growing political pressure for swift and certain prison sentences for criminals.

The findings show nearly 70 per cent of 18,827 club women surveyed — most of them white and middle-class — believe that harsh prison sentences and reinstatement of the death penalty would reduce crime.

The poll also showed that 33 per cent believe probation is more effective than prison and that 27 per cent believe many prison inmates could be dealt with more effectively in community treatment programs.

But, curiously, an overwhelming 82 per cent agreed with the proposition that citizens should open their neighborhoods to community-based programs for convicted criminals.

The poll was conducted by the General Federation of Women's Clubs to enlist its 600,000 members in a national "Hands Up" volunteer campaign against crime. The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration is financing the effort with a $380,000 grant.

The National Council on Crime and Delinquency tabulated and analyzed the poll of club members. Another 18,480 non-members also were polled but there were no percentage figures available for that group.

Most of those in both groups polled "were women over the age of 40, ... of at least average intelligence and of at least average means," the report said.

"There is reason to believe that the overwhelming majority were white," and most live in towns with a population of 50,000 or less, the report said.

Justus Friemund, the NCCD official who is analyzing the data, said the findings could provide members of Congress a fresh source of information about their constituents' attitudes.

He noted that club women in many communities are politically active, either as a group or individually.

President Ford has proposed legislation setting mandatory prison sentences for those convicted of violent crimes and repeated offenses, and has urged state and local governments to follow suit.

The call for tougher jail sentences is attracting increased support from criminal justice experts of both liberal and conservative camps.

BUSY SCHEDULE — Andrew G. Merritt isn't always in the kitchen, as his winning of the Betty Crocker Family Leader of Tomorrow for Washington Senior High School might imply. He maintains a 36-hour per week job at a local service station when not attending college preparatory classes.

WSHS senior wins family leader award

Betty Crocker beware

By GEOFF MAVIS
Record-Herald Staff Writer

A senior at Washington Senior High School has won the Betty Crocker Family Leader of Tomorrow award by scoring above 25 other of his fellow seniors on the written knowledge and attitude examination held in December. The questions did not, as might be expected, deal primarily with culinary skills, but centered around diverse problems concerning many areas of home economics.

Winning a certificate from the General Mills Co. and automatically becoming eligible for state and national honors was Andrew G. Merritt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Merritt, 801 Merit Way, who had never taken a home economics course in his life. The test questions he faced dealt with proper nutrition requirements, interior decorating ability, and family social relationships.

According to the 18-year-old Merritt, the multiple choice questions and essay could not be studied for, but the problems were solvable under application of common sense and a recall of past experiences in the home atmosphere.

Miami Trace High School, as well as many other high schools in the state, also participated in the Betty Crocker Family Leader program, but other winners have not yet been announced. The state winners are to be selected in about three weeks.

State Family Leaders of Tomorrow receive a $1,500 college scholarship while state second-place winners receive a grant of $500. The state winner also earns for his or her school, a 20-volume reference work, "The Annals of America," from Encyclopedia Britannica Educational Corporation.

If Merritt should become a state winner, he would additionally receive an expense-paid educational tour of Washington, D.C. with the other state finalists. A special event of the tour is the announcement of the All-American Family Leader of Tomorrow, who scholarship will be increased to $5,000. Second, third and fourth place winners will receive scholarship increases to $4,000, $3,000, and $2,000 respectively.

An avid chess player, Merritt also likes to do some experimental cooking on the side. Due to the fact that his mother teaches school and he maintains a steady 36-hour weekly job at Maxwell's Shell service station, 312 S. Fayette St., Merritt has had to prepare some of his own meals at odd hours of the day. "I cook mainly to exist, but I've picked up a few skills in the past six years," he said.

Merritt is a three-year member of the Junior Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps brigade at Washington Senior High School, and hopes to receive a scholarship to his college of intended application, Miami University at Oxford. He hopes to pursue a major in elementary education.

Last year's Washington Senior High School's winner was Kevin Langen. Maybe Betty Crocker ought to resign from her spot in the culinary limelight so we can see what her husband knows.

Witness study bares problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — The scene is a threateningly familiar one on city streets:

A man is robbed. A witness helps the victim hail the police, who capture a suspect and take the witness' name and address.

The witness is subpoenaed to testify at the trial. But he does not show up. The victim cannot identify the robber and the case is scratched.

"Uncooperative witness," says the prosecutor. Just another person who didn't want to get involved?

Maybe not, says an Institute for Law and Social Research study.

Working under a federal grant, door-to-door interviewers for the institute talked with 922 witnesses in Washington and its suburbs who had been labeled uncooperative by prosecutors.

In 25 per cent of the cases the people said they wanted to cooperate, but were never contacted. It turned out the police had the wrong address and the witnesses never received their subpoenas.

Doubtless some of the prospective witnesses deliberately gave wrong information to throw the authorities off their trail, said the institute's president, William Hamilton.

But other reasons were found also. Police sometimes took down the address wrong — "P" Street for "T" Street, for instance.

Some officers were observed asking witnesses for their names and addresses within earshot of suspects, making the witnesses fearful to give correct information.

The Washington study was the most ambitious yet, but smaller-scale surveys in Chicago and New York came up with similar results.

A Chicago Crime Commission study indicates that witnesses associated with 33 per cent of 264 serious cases could not be located because of erroneous phone numbers or addresses.

A study of New York City crime victims reported that 16 per cent of 10,000 letters to victims were returned with such notations as "addressee unknown" or "no such street."

The Washington study also concluded that police and prosecutors were failing to properly advise witnesses what they are supposed to do once they are called.

The study revealed that 43 per cent of 594 witnesses said they did not receive an explanation of the major steps of the court process.

For instance, one witness received a subpoena to appear before a grand jury and complied with it. A few weeks later he received a subpoena for the trial, but assumed it was a mistake because he had already testified. So he didn't show up.

Interviewers for the institute talked to witnesses both in ghetto areas of Washington and in prosperous suburban neighborhoods. More than 80 per cent of those interviewed in the city were black, while 70 per cent of those in the suburbs were white.

Computerized mail routes could save $40 million

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — The U.S. Postal Service could save millions of dollars a year and provide better service by using computers to help design its truck routes, a Kansas State University economist says.

Leonard W. Schruben, who has developed computerized routes for school buses as well as bakery, dairy and meat firms, based the estimate on an analysis he said indicates that his approach could save $80,000 annually in the Topeka area.

"Computerized routes would result in earlier mail delivery to many communities in the Topeka mail distribution center," he said Friday. "In no case would mail be delivered later than with manually designated routes."

He said his study, carried out with a graduate student as a practical study project, suggests that the Postal Service might save nearly $500,000 a year if computerized routing was used throughout Kansas. Extending the approach to all 545 mail distribution centers in the United States might save as much as $40 million a year, he estimated.

Postal Service officials have estimated they will end the fiscal year June 30 with a record $1.4 billion deficit. They say they are falling behind at a rate of $7 million a day.

Schruben said the dispatchers who now design postal routes are "a cut above the average," and noted that a computerized system would assist, not replace, their work on a complicated task.

"A truck delivering to only 13 post offices from any distribution facility can be routed more than three billion ways with no duplication," he said. "Multiply the number of post offices by 10 and you get an idea of the problems facing dispatchers who design routes manually in the Topeka center."

Schruben said the Topeka center, which covers a 75-mile-wide corridor in western Kansas, has contracts with the owners of 32 trucks that transport mail to 133 local post offices, stations and branches.

He said his analysis showed that the job could be done by 20 contract trucks that would log 150,000 fewer miles a year. He calculated that the estimated $80,000 in annual savings would come from reductions in both fixed and operational costs.

Crash covers street with corn

The intersection of E. Court and N. North Streets was covered with corn Friday afternoon but it wasn't a new method of ice control or a cheaper method than using salt; rather, it was the result of an accident between a truck driven by Ronald E. Campbell, 29, Hillsboro, and a car driven by Franklin D. Woods, 33, Grove City, Pa.

Washington C.H. police officers reported the mishap between the two vehicles which occurred at 3:49 p.m. knocked some 300 bushels of corn from Campbell's truck and knocked the Woods auto onto the sidewalk. The truck was moderately damaged and the auto was severely damaged, according to police.

Woods sustained a facial laceration in the accident but declined medical treatment. Police charged him with failure to yield right of way at an intersection, driving without an operator's license and driving while intoxicated.

The city street department was summoned to the location with a front end loader, shovels and brooms to remove the corn from the roadway. Traffic was snarled for approximately an hour and all but 50 bushels of the spilled corn was salvagable.

Police reported two additional mishaps Friday and the Fayette County Sheriff's Department investigated four accidents which resulted in the injury of three persons, one of which was admitted to Fayette Memorial Hospital.

SHERIFF
SATURDAY, 1:30 a.m. - A car driven by David J. Pollock, 19, Mount Sterling, traveled onto the right berm of Washington-Waterloo Road, one mile east of Knight Road and struck trees and a fence belonging to James R. Davis, 10904 Washington-Waterloo Road and a Dayton Power and Light Co. utility pole. Sheriff's deputies reported Pollock's auto demolished in the accident and two of his five passengers injured in the wreck: John C. Trimble, 21, and Jackie R. Jacobs, 23, both of Mount Sterling. They were taken to Fayette Memorial Hospital by ambulance.

Hospital officials report Jacobs admitted with fractured ribs and presently listed in stable, but guarded condition. They have no record of Trimble being treated, but reported Pollock treated for an ear laceration and released. Pollock was cited for failure to drive on the right half of the roadway.

Atom plant foes continue battle

CINCINNATI (AP) — Opponents to a $500 million nuclear power plant being constructed at Moscow, an Ohio River community of 350, have petitioned to block licensing of the complex.

An Atomic Safety and Licensing Board heard arguments by representatives from Dayton and Cincinnati at a hearing Friday before taking the case under advisement.

The power station, which is being built by Cincinnati Gas & Electric, is 40 per cent complete.

Shoplift charge filed

A 19-year-old Washington C.H. woman was arrested by city police officers on a charge of petty theft through shoplifting.

Marsha L. Eggleton of 2011 Heritage Court allegedly removed her shoes at the shoe department in Buckeye Mart store in the Washington Square Plaza on Columbus Avenue, put them on a pair of boots and attempted to leave without paying for them. Police reported the value of the boots at $23.99. Ms. Eggleton is presently free on $1,000 bond.

Police reported a second larceny and the Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported an incident of vandalism.

'Slasher' slayings bring 11 charges

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man already in prison for a brutal hatchet attack has been indicted in 11 bizarre killings, nine of which police believe were the work of the so-called "Skid Row Slasher."

The county grand jury indicted Vaughn O. Greenwood, 32, on Friday for the killings, mostly of derelicts and transients, over an 11-year period. The indictment was returned after three days of closed hearings under a court-imposed gag order.

Greenwood, an ex-convict, is serving a 32-years-to-life sentence for a knife and hatchet attack on two men in 1964 and the burglary of actor Burt Reynolds' Hollywood Hills home last year.

At Greenwood's sentencing last September, Superior Court Judge Jack Goertzen called him a "phenomenal danger to society."

Evidence presented to the grand jurors indicated the skid row killer, who gruesomely slashed his victims' throats ear-to-ear, cutting through to the spine, sometimes drank the blood of his prey.

Greenwood is expected to be returned to Los Angeles from Folsom Prison next week and could be arraigned within two weeks.

The "Slasher" attacks began Dec. 1, 1974. A victim with a slashed throat was found about once every week until Jan. 31, 1975, when the body of Clyde C. Hay, 34, a mechanic for the National Cash Register Co., was discovered in Hollywood. Most of the other victims were found in the skid row area.

Greenwood also is accused of killing two men 12 years ago in downtown Los Angeles.

According to the indictment, the first victim was murdered Nov. 13, 1964, on the steps of the main library, where derelicts frequently sleep and hang out. The victim bore the characteristic throat slashing and had suffered multiple stab wounds.

The first of the so-called "Slasher" victims was discovered at almost the same location.

The second 1964 victim was discovered Nov. 14 in a second-floor restroom of a cheap hotel where he had been staying. His throat, too, had been slashed after he was stabbed repeatedly in the upper torso and head.

The first seven killings were confined to the skid row area. Several victims were reportedly homosexuals. But the last two victims, neither of them transients, were found in the Hollywood area.

More than 30 officers had been assigned to a so-called "Slasher Squad" full-time, looking for a man described by psychiatrists as a "sexually impotent coward, venting his own feeling of worthlessness on hapless derelicts and down-and-outers."

Kleindienst portrait unveiled in Justice Department halls

WASHINGTON (AP) — Has it been nearly two years since Richard Kleindienst stood and wept as he pleaded guilty to breaking a law he had sworn to uphold as the nation's attorney general?

If memories of that day flitted through Kleindienst's mind, he gave no sign of it Friday as he returned to the Justice Department for what he called "the greatest honor of my life."

He grinned broadly as his portrait was unveiled and hung in the corridor just outside the office he occupied as Richard Nixon's attorney general from June 12, 1972, to May 25, 1973.

In the flesh and in the portrait, he was the picture of the prosperous Washington lawyer with his well-tailored navy pinstripe suit, the bottom vest button unfastened over his rotund midsection.

He glowed with pleasure at the jibes from Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi, Deputy Atty. Gen. Harold R. Tyler and Solicitor Gen. Robert H. Bork as they delivered the speeches such ceremonies demand.

But the jibes were good-natured and contained no hint of Kleindienst's dark days of negotiating a deal with the Watergate prosecutors, themselves a part of the department, though with a charter of independence.

Kleindienst came close to a perjury charge, a felony, but was allowed to plead guilty to a misdemeanor of failing to testify fully to the Senate Judiciary Committee. He had testified under oath that the White House had not pressured him, as deputy attorney general, to drop an antitrust suit against the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. It was disclosed later that an angry Nixon telephoned Kleindienst personally to demand that he drop the case but that Kleindienst resisted.

"I was wrong, and I sincerely regret it," Kleindienst told the court in May 1974 as he was sentenced to one month in jail and a $100 fine, both suspended.

Choosing to skip over that period, Levi told the gathering of some 200 department officials and other dignitaries that he was "struck by the rich vein of affection for Mr. Kleindienst" among department employees.

The four-foot-high portrait, by Arizona artist Robert G. Harris, was hung next to Robert F. Kennedy's in the gallery of portraits of former attorneys general.

Privacy in phone talk

The Federal Communications Commission has long required that a beep tone must be sounded whenever a telephone conversation is being recorded. This rule is an essential safeguard of privacy, as well as protection against blackmail or other illicit use of what is said. Unless they were put on the alert in this way, individuals could have their remarks recorded without their knowledge. It is thus gratifying that the FCC has voted unanimously to keep the beep tone requirement in the face of an effort to have it eliminated. The main objection raised by Communications Certification Laboratory was based on the cost factor. The FCC properly rejected this and other objections, noting that

"in this instance we believe that privacy of communication is of paramount importance." We concur in that judgment, and think a majority of Americans would. Eliminating the beep tone rule would open the way to unrestrained recording of conversations without the knowledge of the person on the other end of the line.

Job dip swells college ranks

CINCINNATI (AP) — Job scarcity combined with expectations of women and minority group members swelled freshmen classes in the nation's four-year colleges this fall to the highest rate of increase since 1969.

Dr. Garland Parker, vice provost for admissions and records at the University of Cincinnati, said 6,896,124 new students enrolled in 1,383 four-year colleges, a 7.4 per cent increase over last year.

The college enrollment expert's annual report released today estimated there are now more than 11 million persons enrolled fulltime and parttime in 3,062 institutions of higher learning surveyed.

"As the enrollment drop in the early 1970s caught the higher education community by surprise, so did the size of the rise in 1975," said Dr. Parker, whose findings are published by the "American Testing Program," (ACT). The annual survey was formerly published by the journal "Intellect," and under its earlier title, "School & Society."

Parker predicted that college enrollment nationally will peak in the late 1970s and taper off in the 1980s.

He said colleges and universities should make plans to fill the vacancies with programs for alumni, special students, women, and persons interested in continuing education.

Enrollment of such parttime students in the institutions covered increased 7.7 per cent this fall for a total of 2,013,047.

Parker said the factors which might be causing the unusual increase is the entry or re-entry of women into the educational mainstream, senior citizen and continuing education students, larger numbers of transfers, institutional emphasis on retention programs that counter heavy attrition rates, especially among disadvantaged and ethnic minority students and an increasing number of collegiate returnees.

"In these times of job scarcity, recession and inflation, many young as well as older Americans have sought to resume or embark upon a collegiate experience," Parker said.

"I feel also that a significant segment of younger as well as more mature persons in 1975 were more convinced of the merits and the need in terms of life enrichment of higher and post-secondary education," he said.

The report said women now make up 45.4 per cent of the enrollment in 1,472 institutions. Enrollment in 100 urban colleges and universities was up 5.5 per cent.

Castro expanding influence by sending Cubans abroad

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 2,000 Cubans are working in about a dozen poor countries far from Cuba's borders as part of a plan to expand Cuban influence in the Third World, U.S. officials report.

The Cubans are scattered across three continents, building schools and hospitals and offering technical assistance and political advice.

In contrast to well-publicized Cuban military involvement in Angola, these Cubans work almost unnoticed by the rest of the world in such countries as Guinea, the Congo, Somalia, Tanzania, Guinea-Bissau, Sierra Leone, Equatorial Guinea, Algeria, South Yemen and Vietnam.

Officials here have no estimate on how many of these Cubans are military personnel, but Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger recently suggested the figure is high. Discussing Cuban armed forces at a news conference, he said, "They seem to be everywhere but Cuba."

Prime Minister Fidel Castro last month acknowledged that Cuban military involvement has not been limited to Angola. He told the Cuban Communist Party Congress that the Cuban army had "shed blood more than once in other countries threatened by imperialist aggression."

Until a little over a year ago, a Cuban tank battalion was based in Syria. But officials say most foreign-based Cubans operating outside Angola, including servicemen, are on peaceful missions. They say these Cubans could be put to good use at home but, as one official said, Castro has never been content to concentrate on Cuba alone.

He said Castro wants to build up Cuba as the country the Third World looks to for leadership. Another factor, he said, is that Castro finds these far-flung ventures nourishing to his ego.

For years, Castro focused his attention on Latin America, aiding guerrilla groups throughout the region. In the recent past, however, Castro has abandoned the tactic and U.S. officials say there is no evidence of any Cuban meddling in Latin America at present. The view in Washington is that the Soviet Union prevailed on Castro to leave responsibility for the revolutionary struggle in Latin America to local leftist groups.

Sources say some of Cuba's activities in Third World countries are done at Moscow's suggestion and others at Havana's own initiative.

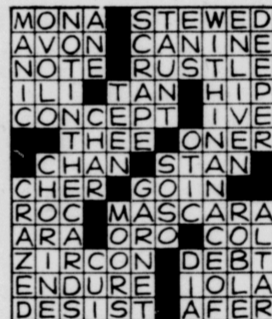

Most of the Cubans sent on foreign missions come from a peasant background and the groups they deal with in poor countries find the Cubans highly congenial, officials say.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Parents won't take this lying down

DEAR ABBY: I am a 15-year-old girl who is pretty good at solving problems, but I need help with this one.

One evening my parents walked into the front room and found my boyfriend and me lying on the couch. We were just talking.

Ever since then I have heard nothing but remarks like, "The next thing you know, he'll be on top of you!" And, "Don't ever do that again!"

Abby, I've never done anything that would cause them to not trust me, and this upsets my boyfriend and me.

Do you see anything wrong with two people lying on the couch and talking? What would you do if it were your daughter, and you had always been able to trust her?

JUST TALKING

DEAR JUST: I'd tell her that she'd be wise to keep both feet on the floor, and so would her boyfriend—that talking in a sleeping position could lead to nightmares she never dreamed could happen. I'd say, "I still trust you. Honey. But people think better when they're sitting up."

DEAR ABBY: My sister-in-law is very sick and she's not expected to live much longer. Do I have to go to her funeral when she dies? It would take your entire column to tell you how much heartache she has caused me over the years because of vicious lies.

Her husband always took her part, so I never cared much for either of them.

Would it look terrible if I stayed home and my husband went to the funeral without me? He really doesn't want to go either, but we're afraid that if he doesn't go, the whole family will criticize us. On the other hand, if we both went, we would feel like a couple of hypocrites.

Thanks for any help you can give me.

DEBATING

DEAR DEBATING: Which could you live with more comfortably? Staying away and being criticized by the family? Or going, and feeling like a couple of hypocrites? The decision is yours.

DEAR ABBY: Possibly "Too D— Tall" (the gal who complained because she was 6 ft. tall) is looking for a man who is 6 ft. plus. However, one frequently sees tall women happily married to men who are shorter. One such couple is the famous composer and conductor, Johnny Green, and his beautiful statuesque wife, Bonnie.

If tall women would lower their level of vision, they might well find some very attractive, eligible men looking up at them with eager interest.

AN L.A. M.D.

DEAR M.D.: Well said.

DEAR ABBY: I read the letter in your column from Dr. Arnold Katz who described what had happened to a 16-month-old patient who discovered a bottle of lye, and ingested just one mouthful!

Being the grandmother of a curious toddler who visits me often, I stopped right then and inspected our home.

Abby, I couldn't believe the number of dangerous poisons and chemicals I had stored underneath my sink! And they could easily have been within the reach of our precious grandchild!

I immediately took your advice and put every hazardous item under lock and key. I can't thank you enough for printing that important warning.

TULSA GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: Don't thank me. Thank Dr. Katz.

New farm feed grain allotments available

Farms without a feed grain allotment may have an allotment for the 1976 program established if they meet eligibility requirements.

An application for a new farm feed grain allotment must be filed with the Fayette County Agriculture Stabilization Conservation Service office at 1503 Columbus Avenue, Washington C.H., by the Feb. 15 deadline.

Chester Phillips, director of the Fayette County ASCS office, said feed grain allotments for 1976 are automatically established for all eligible old feed grain farms. The new farm provisions apply only to farms that do not have allotments.

To be eligible for a new farm allotment:

— Neither the owner nor the operator of the farm may have an interest in any other farm that has a feed grain allotment established for 1976;

— The operator must expect to obtain more than 50 per cent of his 1976 income from farming; and

— The farm for which an application is filed must be suitable for feed grain production without undue erosion.

Any interested producer who can meet these requirements should contact the ASCS office for an application before the filing deadline.

Soviets fight grain shortage

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hard pressed by a skimpy harvest last year, the Soviet Union has trimmed hog and poultry inventories severely in an apparent effort to conserve valuable grain supplies until 1976 crops are ready, the Agriculture Department said today.

According to department analysts, Russia's hog inventory on Jan. 1 probably was 20 per cent less than it was a year ago and indications point to at least an 11 per cent cutback in poultry flocks.

The Soviet cattle herd, however, apparently is being given top priority so that it can weather the current grain shortage. Hogs and poultry can be replaced much more quickly than cattle since they breed more quickly and require less time to grow.

"A substantial part of the decrease in hog numbers since Oct. 1 may be explained by reduced breedings in the summer as drought conditions became more evident, rather than by distress slaughter," the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said.

"The peak in distress slaughter apparently occurred in the third quarter of 1975 when implied pork production was up 56 per cent over the 1974 level," the agency said in a weekly "Foreign Agriculture" magazine. "In contrast, production has been down 33 per cent (from a year earlier) during the first two months of the fourth quarter."

While the high rates of slaughter have meant more pork and poultry meat for Soviet consumers, those products have not increased in proportion to the killer of livestock, officials said. That is due to the slaughter of many lightweight or young hogs and birds which means less meat than if they had been allowed to mature.

Cattle inventories by Nov. 1 increased 3 per cent from the same date in 1974, the report said. This included a 2 per cent increase in cows, indicating that planners still are intent on preserving and possibly enlarging the country's cattle breeding herd.

The belt-tightening was caused by widespread crop failure as the result of drought last year. According to official USDA estimates, the 1975 Russian harvest was about 137 million metric tons, about 36 per cent short of Moscow's initial target of 215.7 million.

There is some indication that Russia's grain harvest was even smaller than the USDA officially estimates. Based on computations derived from recent announcements of Russia's five-year plan, the 1975 harvest may have been about 123 million tons, the department said.

In any event, the poor harvest forced the Soviet Union to buy huge quantities of grain from other countries, including 13.2 million tons of wheat and corn from the United States, to help make up part of the deficit in 1975-76. A metric ton is 2,205 pounds.

Landmark's All-Ohio Team of Forages.

They're bred, grown and tested for Ohio farms... adapted to Ohio climate and soils... that's why we know they'll give you best yields. Here are 3 "first string" forages plus 4 other first team members.

TEMPO alfalfa. Very high yielding. Starts fast, recovers fast. Resistant to leafspot and bacterial wilt. Superior winter hardiness, good in long-time stands.

WEEVLCHER alfalfa. Sustains less damage, recovers faster under heavy weevil attack. Very resistant to bacterial wilt, common leafspot and leaf hoppers. Winter hardy.

REDMAN Improved medium red clover. Vigorous, well-adapted, resistant to both northern and southern anthracnose. Great for seeding with Tempo or Weevilcher.

Four more first team forages, too:

HALLMARK & ABLE Orchardgrass. Hallmark is medium-early, disease-resistant, vigorous and persistent. Able is late-maturing, resistant, good for growing with alfalfa.

FFR-66 & FFR-74. Sorghum-Sudan and Sudan-Sudan hybrids; high-yielding, fast-growing (up to 3 in. per day), make good part of growth late, when other forages slack off.

The annual Corn and Soybean Club banquet will be held Thursday evening January 29 at 6:30 p.m. in the Mahan Building.

The banquet is held each year to recognize the winners in yield and profit categories of the corn and soybean production contests and to discuss the contest results with participants and agronomy committee members.

The banquet also serves as the annual meeting of the Fayette County Agronomy Committee. New officers and directors of the committee will be elected.

Tickets for the banquet are available from agronomy committee directors or at the Extension Office at $4.50 per person. Several seed companies have donated seed corn for door prize drawings.

PORK PRODUCERS and other interested folks should mark their calendars and plan to attend the annual Pork Producer's banquet on Thursday evening February 5. The event will start at 6:30 p.m. in Mahan Building.

Speaker for the Pork banquet will be Brian Baschnagel from the Ohio State football team's powerful backfield. Baschnagel will talk about his experiences with the team and will answer questions from the audience.

Tickets for the banquet are on sale from directors of the Pork Producer's Association or at the Extension Office.

Richard Wood is chairman of the banquet committee and has announced that six hams will be given as door prizes.

THE SECOND meeting in the estate planning series will start at 7:15 p.m. Wednesday, January 28 in the Miami Trace High School cafeteria. The estate planning series is being sponsored jointly by the Fayette County Extension Office and the Miami Trace Vo-Ag Department.

The purpose of the series is to assist farm families in recognizing the importance of proper estate planning to avoid the problems of splitting up a family operation and to point out some of the procedures to be considered in the estate planning process.

The series of meetings is open to anyone interested in obtaining information on the subject of estate planning and property transfer.

THE COMMITTEE for the Winter Pork Carcass Evaluation met last week at the Extension Office and established rules for the annual carcass event. The date for the Winter Carcass contest is Wednesday, February 18, 6:30 p.m. at Producers Livestock Yards in Washington C.H.

The winter carcass evaluation has been expanded this year to provide more opportunities for commercial pork producers to evaluate carcass merit of their swine herd. Previously restricted to barrows the committee has added a class to allow for carcass evaluation of gilts. Participants can make up to two entries in each class this year.

Pork producers interested in making entries in the carcass contest should contact the Extension Office for additional detail.

PLANS ARE currently being made for the first Southern Ohio Graded Bull Sale scheduled for Saturday April 24 at Union Stockyards, Hillsboro. The Southern Ohio Beef Committee, sponsors of the sale, was formed last spring by a group of interested cattlemen and Extension agents who met to take an overall look at the cow-calf situation in Southern Ohio.

The committee which was formed saw a need for a source of good service age bulls to help up grade small commercial cow herds. The committee also recognized that there are several small cow herds which could use a bull for only a couple of calf crops and then must secure a replacement bull.

The bull sale was planned to provide breeders a chance to sell bulls to commercial herds and to provide small herd owners a chance to sell a good "used" bull. Beefcow-calf operators or breeders who want to consign a bull to the sale have until February 1 to make their consignments. A consignment fee of $35.00 must accompany the entry.

All bulls in the sale must have been calved prior to January 1, 1975 and will be inspected and graded. To be eligible for the sale the bull must grade at least choice in muscling, frame, and soundness.

February 25 and 26. The tour will leave from the Fayette County Fairground at 6:30 a.m. February 25 and return at approximately 6:30 p.m. February 26. Tour stops will include Eli Lilly Agricultural Research Center, Greenfield Indiana, Purdue's Linwood Farm near Carmel, Indiana, and Pioneer Farms, Tipton Indiana. Additional tour stops are being scheduled at several farm operations near Greenfield and Tipton, Indiana.

Reservations are now being accepted for the tour on a first come first served basis. Cost is $30 per person ($40 if a single room is requested) and the fee must accompany the reservation.

Grain reserves plan studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — An international panel is resuming talks in London on a possible framework for creating world food grain reserves, a plan that one senior Agriculture Department official says has not been warmly received by many of the richer nations.

The three-day meeting starting today, the latest in a series, is being held under the auspices of the International Wheat Council and includes representatives from importing countries as well as those that handle most of the exports in world trade.

Meanwhile, a USDA study says the department needs to become more directly involved in the development of U.S. policy aimed at helping needy countries improve their agriculture.

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Richard E. Bell, who oversees USDA's international affairs and commodity programs, is a U.S. delegate at the London meeting. He told reporters before leaving this weekend that he was "not particularly expecting" any decisions on world food reserves at the meeting.

The U.S. proposal, which Bell said "is still on the table" for discussion, calls for a reserve of 30 million metric tons of wheat and rice. A metric ton is 2,205 pounds.

But the U.S. proposal also calls for each country to acquire and maintain its own share of the reserve and rejects the idea of an internationally held and managed supply.

With larger harvests the past year in many countries, much earlier enthusiasm for establishing world food reserves of grain appears to have declined.

Corn crop set record

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite bad weather in some areas, the nation's corn crop last year squeaked through and produced a record of nearly 5.8 billion bushels, enough so that government analysts are confident of easily meeting domestic and export needs.

The Agriculture Department, in a new estimate Thursday, said the 1975 harvest was 24 per cent larger than the weather-plagued 1974 crop which produced a skimpy 4.7 billion bushels.

In 1880, Ohio had a wheat crop of 49.7 million bushels and only Illinois produced more. The corn crop was 119.9 million bushels.

Julie visits Ohio as designer

CINCINNATI (AP)—While Julie Nixon Eisenhower's father was in the White House, it was a struggle to stay out of the spotlight.

Now the oldest daughter of former President Nixon is back in a spotlight of her own — smaller of course — which lights up her newest career as a designer of embroidery.

She is currently on tour promoting a line of "Julie's Stitchery," an avocation to which she was introduced by her mother-in-law Mamie Eisenhower.

It's not that she enters the world of design as an unknown. The two names Nixon and Eisenhower are instant calling cards, but she isn't about to de-emphasize either that she is the daughter of a former president.

She says she is constantly made aware of her parentage when she first is introduced to people who either love or hate her father.

"That is one of the realities that you have to face when your father was in office," she said. "Still I consider it an honor to be the daughter of a president and I'm proud of his accomplishments."

"When I'm introduced to people they often judge me first because of how they feel about my father, but later when they know me, they begin to judge me for myself."

It's her own accomplishments that she's talking about nowadays. In addition to her needlework, Mrs. Eisenhower recently returned from a trip to China, has done some radio and television interviews and many speeches, with her favorite topics being women in government and volunteerism.

She admits that she could not attempt to start a career while her father was in the White House because of charges of commercialism, but her father's resignation also freed her from another burden.

"You don't know what a relief it is not worry about having secret service around you all the time," she laughed. "For awhile, I couldn't believe they were not there any more."

"At first, I was almost ready to pick up the phone and tell them, 'I'm going to the grocery or I'm going to the drug store,' but then I remembered I didn't have to do that anymore."

"For a year after my father left the White House, I felt like a new person. Now I'm trying to live like everyone else."

Mrs. Eisenhower says her parents are taking a keen interest in her new career, and although an invitation to a news conference, asks that questions be restricted to the promotion of "Julie's Stitchery," she does not shy away from questions about her father.

"I call him every two days or every day, depending on what I'm doing," she said. "When I called home and said I was in Cincinnati, my dad reminded me that I was near where the disaster took place in Xenia. He likes to know where I am and what I'm doing."

"He spends most of his time working on his book, and because it is an election year, I think he's going to stay in the background because he feels it would be better. We just try to live from day-to-day, do you know what I mean?"

The total Indian population of Ohio at the beginning of the Revolutionary War has been estimated at only about 6,000, which was one Indian to every seven square miles. No census was ever taken but other historians have estimated that Ohio's Indian population never exceeded 15,000.

Roses, and Other Things

By ROSEY

Roses, like people, are highly adaptable to variations in environment, but will do best when conditions are most to their liking. Roses can grow in almost any kind of soil, with almost any degree of soil sweetness or acidity. They prefer a good, rich, loamy soil slightly on the acid (sour) side; the degree of sourness will have some bearing on the color of the blooms. The blue-hues of roses are most pronounced just under a neutral acidity, while those with no blue pigment generally are more vivid as the acidity increases. Most reds have a certain amount of blue present also, so become darker as acidity decreases, and more vivid as it increases. One common fault of many persons is to assume that all soil needs to be limed at regular intervals—this depends upon the soil and also upon the crop you are growing. With roses you can drastically reduce results if lime makes the soil too sweet; the safest idea is to initially do (or have done) a soil test. The average person can do this himself, with no special training, and get sufficiently accurate results for home gardening purposes. The simplest tests show only the degree of acidity, while others can also indicate nitrogen, phosphorus, potash, and even humus content; many will also indicate what must be added to your soil, and how much per square foot, to change it to the results you desire.

For the best results in growing roses, you will want a soil acidity reading from 6.5 down to 5.5; below this point too many of your soil nutrients are at least partially locked into the soil. If your test results show a reading below 5.5, the most common correction procedure is to add lime. If it is above 6.5, you can add copperas, aluminum sulfate, or sulfur. Both the copperas and the aluminum sulfate will reduce the reading rapidly, but both will leach out in an average season, so must be replaced again the next spring; if copperas is used, it will have the added advantage of providing iron to your soil in a form available to the plant. Sulfur acts more slowly but has the advantage of lasting for several seasons; in addition, it acts as a fungicide and an insecticide against many of the disease and insects forms which will attempt to overwinter in your soil. I have found it to be advantageous to combine sulfur with one of the other two, to give both a rapid and also a prolonged effect, but if you mix them, be sure to reduce the recommended amount of each, or you will end up with your soil more sour than you intend it to be.

A distinct advantage of planting your roses in more than one bed is that you can then individualize the degree of acidity of each area, and plant your various bushes in the bed which will then be most effective in bringing out the best color features of the bloom.

Cooks encouraged to improvise

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

When you meet up with a good recipe, hang onto it! If you feel, after you have served the dish a good many times, that you are offering "the same old thing," give yourself the fun of improvising on it.

Here's how we followed our own advice. Years ago we found a recipe for a delicious combination that had an all sourcream base and that we used as a dressing for cucumber salad and a sauce for chilled poached fish. Recently when we wanted a "different" dip to serve with raw vegetables, we used mayonnaise for half the sour cream and added a topping of toasted sesame seed — and here's the recipe.

BLUE RIDGE DIP
1/2 cup commercial sour cream
1/2 cup real mayonnaise
1/2 cup (9 or 10) small pimiento-stuffed green olives, minced
2 tablespoons minced parsley
2 tablespoons minced scallion
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon white pepper
1/8 teaspoon nutmeg
2 tablespoons toasted sesame seed, if desired

Stir together all the ingredients except the sesame seed. Cover and allow for several hours or overnight to allow flavors to blend. Stir lightly and turn into a small serving bowl; sprinkle with the sesame seed if used. Makes 1 1/2 cups. Nice served with radishes, par-boiled zucchini sticks, carrot curls and celery wedges. To toast the small amount of sesame seed, turn it into a small skillet and stir constantly over low heat just until it turns color — a matter of a few minutes.

SPECIAL TOUCHES — Begin the day with a special meal including marinated vegetable platter and chicken tetrazzina, with broccoli and herbed lemon butter.

Home entertaining with right price tag

Do you want to feed friends with finesse... but for less? It may sound like a herculean task to keep elegance and budget in balance. It may even frighten a few weak-hearted cooks who think, "Oh, no, here comes the extra work." The fact is that a well-planned menu is the right way to "make it happen." Be sure to serve the meal buffet style, too, so that it is easier on the hostess.

Start the buffet with a Marinated Vegetable Platter. The selection of vegetables should include good buys at the market plus the elegance of one extravagant vegetable, artichoke hearts. The dressing will speak for itself in telling your guests that it's specially homemade. As the entree prepare Chicken Tetrazzini — a sumptuous dish of chicken and sauteed mushrooms in a rich cream sauce with Parmesan cheese atop. It won't look budget in the slightest, and yet the meat will go further because it is baked over that favorite thin Italian pasta, linguini. Broccoli and Herbed Lemon Butter is a simple yet lovely way to complete the main course.

A few special touches will make the meal really fine. The first begins in the preparation by using Ac'cent Flavor Enhancer to blend and bring out the fullest flavor of each dish. Another important touch is to garnish dishes attractively — pimiento strips on the broccoli and a golden-browned cheese and paprika topping baked on the Tetrazzini. A spinach underliner for the Vegetable Platter gives this dish richness in color and flavor at a cost lower than lettuce at average prices. So don't be dismayed by the thought of a dinner party — not when it can be done economically with style for eight people at less than $20.00 total — main course through dessert.

MARINATED VEGETABLE PLATTER

Marinade
1 cup vegetable oil
1/2 cup tarragon wine vinegar
1/2 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon instant minced onion
1/2 teaspoon Ac'cent Flavor Enhancer
1/2 teaspoon parsley flakes
1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
1/4 teaspoon dried leaf oregano
1/8 teaspoon garlic powder

Vegetable Platter
1 9-ounce package frozen artichoke hearts
1 16-ounce can whole baby carrots, drained
1 10-ounce package spinach leaves, washed and trimmed
1 pint cherry tomatoes, washed and drained

1 7 3/4-ounce can ripe olives, drained
3 ribs celery, cut into 2-inch pieces
In a small bowl mix all ingredients for marinade; pour half of mixture into a second bowl. In a saucepan cook artichoke hearts in boiling salted water as directed on package. Drain and add to marinated in one bowl. Add carrots to second bowl. Allow to sit at room temperature for three to four hours; drain. Line serving platter with spinach and arrange artichokes, carrots, tomatoes, olives and celery over spinach leaves. Chill. Pour marinade over vegetables as a dressing. Makes 8 servings.

CHICKEN TETRAZZINA

1 1/4 pounds linguini
1/2 cup butter or margarine, divided
1 small onion, chopped
3/4 pound fresh mushrooms, sliced
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 cup flour
2 cups chicken broth
1-3 cup dry sherry
1 cup heavy cream
5 cups cubed cooked chicken or turkey

1/2 cup sliced almonds
1 teaspoon Ac'cent Flavor Enhancer
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/2 teaspoon paprika
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
3/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
Cook linguini as package directs; drain, place in greased 13 x 9-inch baking dish. Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

Meanwhile, melt 1/4 cup butter in a large saucepan over medium heat. Add onion and mushrooms; cook 5 minutes. Sprinkle with lemon juice. Remove and reserve. In same skillet melt remaining butter and blend in flour. Cook over low heat 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Gradually stir in chicken broth and sherry, and cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Stir in cream. Add chicken, almonds, mushroom mixture, flavor enhancer, salt, pepper, paprika, and nutmeg. Spoon over linguini. Sprinkle with cheese and additional paprika. Bake 30 to 40 minutes. Makes 8 servings.

BROCCOLI AND HERBED LEMON BUTTER

2 10-ounce packages frozen broccoli
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1 1/2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
4 teaspoons lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon Ac'cent Flavor Enhancer
1/2 teaspoon dried leaf oregano
Pimiento strips

In a saucepan, cook broccoli in boiling salted water as directed on package. Meanwhile, in another saucepan, melt butter and stir in seasonings. Cook over low heat 5 minutes. Drain broccoli and place in serving bowl. Pour butter mixture over vegetables and garnish with pimiento strips. Makes 8 servings.

Lions hit century mark

WCH buries Unioto

By MARK REA
Record-Herald Sports Writer

When looking at the basketball floor at the Washington Senior High School gym, you can almost see the imprint of an entire Unioto Sherman team.

Last night, they were stomped into the hardwood by the Washington C.H. Blue Lions by an unbelievable 117-45 score. The Lions annihilated the Tanks in every phase of the game while blasting them by a 72 point margin.

The Blue Lions could do no wrong as they landed six players in double figures. Sophomore sensation John Denen led Court House with 23 points and the rest of the men in double figures were seniors. Doug Phillips collected 19, Scott Sefton and Chuck Byrd each tallied 14, Eddie DeWeese tossed in 11, and Ken Upthegrove stuffed in 10.

As for the other four players on the team, they didn't have too bad a time either. Dee Hart Foster scored eight points while Randy Jamison, Sam

McClendon, and Mark Heiny all had six counters.

Washington had a phenomenal shooting percentage from the floor as they made 50 out of 82 field goal attempts for 60.9 per cent. As for the Shermans, they attempted about half as many field goals (45) and made only 33.3 per cent of them.

Every statistic weighed as heavily as the score in the Lions' favor. They out-rebounded Unioto 49-25, chalked up 19 assists to the Shermans' two, stole the ball 18 times to just one for the Tanks, and committed only 10 turnovers while Unioto gave the ball away an astronomical 35 times.

Unioto, believe it or not, actually tried out their famous stall tactics at the beginning of the game but the pressure by Byrd and Foster proved to be too much for their dribbling ability.

Also proving too much for the Tanks' ability was Denen and Phillips who collected 13 of Washington's 19 first quarter points. The initial period was a mirror of things yet to come as Court House led 19-5.

The second quarter saw Washington get their highest point total in one quarter for the season with 31. That record didn't last long though, as they scored 39 in the final quarter.

Washington head coach Gary Shaffer made wholesale replacements in the second period and by the middle of the quarter the bench was cleared. Practically everyone on the team contributed points in that quarter with Denen scoring the most with eight. The score at halftime was 50-16.

The third quarter showed no letup in the Lion offensive machine as they went back to work after the 15 minute intermission and scored 28 more points. Sefton and DeWeese handled the brunt of the attack in the third frame, scoring 10 and eight points, respectively. Heiny and Jamison each tallied four in the period. With one period to go, the Lions led 78-26.

After almost two quarters of rest, the starters came back into the game and finished off the already dying Shermans. Phillips tossed in 10 points in the quarter including a 20-footer that broke the century mark for the first time since 1974 when Washington C.H. beat Wilmington 101-55. In addition, Denen threw in nine more tallies, Upthegrove scored eight, and Byrd and Foster had six points in the final period. The game came to a close with the Lions winning, 117-45.

Unioto failed to get anyone in double figures but they had a few that came close. Steve Barr, who also played in the reserve game, and Garry Proehl each scored eight points while Steve Uhrig tallied seven before fouling out.

The Lions now 7-4 overall and 6-3 in the SCOL, go in search of another league win next Friday against Greenfield McClain in the McClain gym. Starting time for the reserve game will be 6:30 p.m.

Lion reserves mimic varsity

The Washington C.H. Blue Lions walked all over the Unioto Sherman reserves as they smashed the Tanks, 70-24. With the combined totals of the varsity and the reserve scores, Court House outscored Unioto last night 187-69.

The Lions, who have lately had trouble giving games away on fouls, eliminated that problem by not yielding a single point from the charity stripe. Mark Burke led the Lions to the victory with 18 points and Tom Dean and Jeff DeWeese also scored in double figures; Dean with 13 and DeWeese with 10.

The only players close to doubles for Unioto were Steve Barr and Rick Caudill who had six each.

The Lions, now 9-2 overall and 8-1 in the league, travel to meet Greenfield next Friday night. Game time will be 6:30 p.m.

Bexley jumps past Miami Trace cagers

By PHIL LEWIS
Record-Herald Sports Editor

Although Bexley's junior center Larry Wilson spends his time on the track team in the spring near the high jump pit, he showed everybody at Miami Trace High School Friday night that he can leap in the winter as well.

The 6-2 pivotman, who cleared 6-6 last spring as a sophomore track star, tossed in 24 points — 12 of those in the last quarter — and pulled 18 rebounds to power Bexley to a 87-78 win over the Panthers.

Miami Trace trailed by only two points going into the final quarter against the Columbus powerhouse, but Wilson started to do his thing with a basketball — score.

He hit on three straight buckets in the opening minute of the final period, and the Panthers were unable to come back.

"There's nothing to be ashamed of," the Miami Trace coaching staff agreed after the non-league loss which dropped the Panthers to 6-6 on the season.

Bexley was superb shooting a scorching 59 per cent from the field, committing only eight turnovers and turning in a well-played and exciting performance.

The Panthers were no slouches either on the court, but when the going got tough, they were unable to match Wilson's play underneath.

"We don't have the big kid," Coach John Woolums said after the loss even though he was pleased with the play of his two centers, Wendell Logan and Bill Hanners, who combined for 22 points.

The 6-2 Wilson is far from being a one-man team, however, and the Panthers had to keep close eyes on the Lions two guards, Todd Millard and Phil Wright.

Millard, who is the son of the Bexley coach, poured in 23 points and Wright added 19. Most of Millard's came in the first half, and Wright picked up more than half of his total from the freethrow line while setting a Bexley school record with 13 assists.

The Panthers started the game with a man-to-man defense, but moved into a zone at the beginning of the second half. Woolums made the defensive move not only to keep Wilson boxed off the boards, but to take away the Bexley "moving" picks which were leaving the sharpshooting Millard open.

The strategy seemed to work in the third period as the Panthers shutout Millard and held Wilson to just one basket allowing the Panthers to move within two points going into the fourth quarter.

In fact, the Panthers took the lead for a brief period of time in the third stanza when Wilson was called for goal tending for the second time on a shot by Art Schlichter.

Bexley came back to take a two point lead at 61-59, on a rare four-point play by Wright. The senior guard was going to the basket for a layup and was fouled by Schlichter. The officials ruled the Trace player came underneath the driving Wright and was charged with an intentional foul which is a two-shot penalty. Wright made the layup and also hit the two freethrows and the Panthers never got closer.

Fouls again hurt the Panthers as Bexley hit 15 of 25 freethrows to pad the winning margin.

"We reach in and make silly fouls," Woolums said of his team which scored three more field goals than the opposition Tuesday night and still lost by five points.

"The charging fouls on the fast break hurt early in the game. We turn around and put the ball to the floor before looking down court," Woolums added stating that the proper procedure is done just the opposite way.

Schlichter and Dan Gifford led the Panther attack with 16 points apiece. Logan, who started his first game in a month replacing Gifford in the first five, added 14 points.

MT reserves nip Bexley

The Miami Trace reserves came back from a 33-18 halftime deficit and nipped the Bexley reserves, 57-56, Friday night.

The Panthers trailed by six with little over three minutes remaining in the contest, but reeled off eight straight points to grab the lead. Unlike many of the reserves past games, they came through in the clutch and held on for the slim victory.

The going got tough with just :23 showing on the clock when Bexley went to the line trailing by only a basket. The Lion reserve could connect on only one of two freethrows giving the Panthers the win.

Freshman Glen Cobb again led the Panthers attack with 17 points.

rebounds," Woolums said of Gifford and decided to start Logan, who has been the top rebounder in practice.

Gifford got his share last night, however, coming off the bench to pull 10 caroms. Allan Conner was second in the rebounding department with nine and he also scored 12 points.

Guard Rod Garringer was also in double figures for the Panthers scoring

all 12 of this points in the second half. The Panthers shot a respectable 49 per cent from the floor for the evening and hit on eight of 11 freethrows to top Bexley percentage-wise in that department.

The Panthers get back to the South Central Ohio League title race next Friday against Hillsboro on the Indians homecourt.

GOAL TENDING — Bexley's Larry Wilson goes high to pin the ball on the backboard as the Panthers Dan Gifford attempts a layup. Wilson was called for goal tending twice in the game while leading his team in rebounding and scoring. Gifford also led the Panthers in the two departments. (Ed Summers photo)

Opening lead - jack of hearts.

Let's suppose that in a particular case declarer can make the contract only by taking a successful finesse against a king. If nothing in the bidding or early play indicates otherwise, he is said to have a 50 per cent chance for the contract.

But in some such cases declarer can increase his chances well beyond 50 per cent by utilizing measures other than a straight finesse. This escalation of chances is something a careful declarer always searches for, and he adopts every means possible to improve his prospects.

Consider this deal where South's slam seems to depend solely on a club finesse. But actually it is possible to make the slam, in certain circumstances, even though West has the king of clubs.

Thus, the slam can be made not only in the 50 deals out of 100 where East has the king of clubs, but also in another 10 deals or so where West has the singleton or doubleton king.

In order to cover these additional possibilities and raise his chances from 50 per cent to 60 per cent, South wins the heart trump with the king, draws trumps, cashes the ace of hearts, ace of clubs and K-A of diamonds, then ruffs the nine of diamonds.

These preliminaries having been attended to, South enters dummy with a trump, leads a club, and plays the queen after East follows low. (South cannot be expected to know that West was dealt the doubleton king.)

West takes the queen with the king, but must return a heart or a diamond, as these are the only suits he has left. This permits South to discard a club from dummy as he ruffs the return in his hand, and the upshot is that he makes the contract.

Winners Tuesday night at the Washington Duplicate Bridge Club were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Bourke with a score of 49. It was the second consecutive week the Bourkes have won.

Bruce Strickling and Mrs. Larry Coll were second with 43, while Mrs. Willard Henry and Mrs. Ralph Shanks were third with 42.

The club will meet at 7:15 p.m. Tuesday night in the Benton Room of the Washington Inn.

Banks feel disclosure push

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Whether we should have an open or a closed society is now one of those enormous ideological themes that now and then moves from the world of academe directly into the daily public debate.

The nation's banks, traditionally an area of discreet privacy, have suddenly found themselves the subject of news stories.

There was a report Thursday that a dozen of the nation's 50 largest bank holding companies are on the Federal Reserve Board's "problem list."

Another recent news story said the nation's second and third largest banks, First National City and Chase Manhattan, are on a similar list of the Comptroller of the Currency.

There are those in government and in the banking industry who claim such publicity is not in the public interest. It all amounts to part of a larger debate on the place of secrecy in our society. There are those, for example, who say the nation's intelligence operations should be an open book, to be read for profit not only by insiders but by the general public and potential adversaries too.

And there is a school that defends intelligence secrecy as the only way to protect a society we call free and open from blundering into mistakes that, it is feared, could undermine every other lofty idea.

Data, facts and activities that once were withheld "in the public interest" have now been pried loose from the Internal Revenue Service, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the business establishment, the investment community, the White House and other institutions and are now public knowledge.

A Freedom of Information Act prevents government from withholding certain information. And public interest groups now employ staffs whose job is to open up the system to examination and use by the public.

In almost all instances the prying has revealed information that many people consider shocking, and therefore each inquiry seems to generate another. And now the pressure is on the banks.

Disclosure of information about the nation's banking system always has been handled with great sensitivity, restraint and secrecy, the rationale being that public confidence must be maintained even if problems are hidden.

Asked if recent disclosures of sometimes shaky finances, poor judgment and questionable management practices in banking has hurt rather than helped the country, a member of the Federal Reserve Board privately suggested the public was hurt.

The news media, he said, has made it more difficult for banks to lend. If they know that reports of their internal activities will be scrutinized by the public rather than restricted to certain federal officials, they will be reluctant to make some loans. And, he concluded, the economy will be hurt. But, he was asked, didn't the massive loan losses incurred by some banks lead to higher interest rates? Didn't banks cover their losses by raising prices? And therefore, wasn't the public damaged?

He agreed. But he went on to say the media remains at fault because of what he called its "snapshot" views of highly technical, complicated and changing matters. The story is a continuing one, he said, and requires a series of pictures.

That suggestion appears likely to be followed up, partly because congressional interest also is aroused in what goes on in the private world of high finance, where little is done that does not have a public impact.

New lottery game eyed for summer

CLEVELAND (AP) — If you're the type of gambler who wants to know right away if you've won or lost, the Ohio Lottery Commission is drawing up a game for you.

An "instant lottery game" probably will be started in the summer, said Gerald Patronite, executive lottery director, after lottery commissioners instructed him to draw up a recommendation on such a game.

Commissioners said they would discuss specifics of the game at their Feb. 12 meeting. The commission also approved starting a special bonus game which will give Buckeye 1,000 ticket holders a chance for extra prizes of $1,776 and $1,976.

David Leahy, commission chairman, said the instant game is an attempt to boost sales during the second year of the lottery's operation, a time when most lottery sales drop.

He said that an instant game would sell from eight to 10 million tickets the first week. The current Buckeye 1,000 and Spirit of '76 games have average ticket sales of 4.4 million a week, he added.

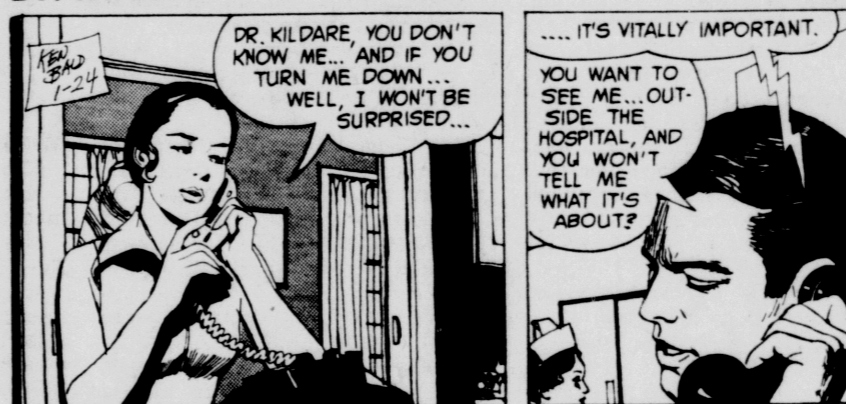

In an instant game, a ticket holder scratches a slot on his ticket and then ticket instructions tell him if the number he has is a winning one. The tickets would cost $1.

Hopeful News in Medicine: Speaking of Your Health...

LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

Clarifying the Marijuana Issue

I treasure the many letters I receive from young readers. I am impressed by the interest that high school students show in biology and general science.

These young, fertile minds flourish on the encouragement given them by educators and parents. Their pattern of intellectual growth depends on the stimulation they receive. Their interest in the biological sciences can lead to the study of medicine.

Another group of letters is distressing.

Some young people seem to believe that I am carrying on a personal vendetta against them by my repeated emphasis on the dangers of marijuana.

They also suggest that I am in collusion with their parents against them, for many parents point to my columns and use them to persuade their children that marijuana can be hazardous.

Some letters confuse the issues by insisting that the legal penalty for the use of marijuana is unfair and should be eliminated.

Once again, I want to clarify very definitely some of these issues. As a physician, I am concerned primarily about the health hazards of cannabis, the all-inclusive term for marijuana and its related substances.

As a thinking human being I, too, am concerned about the excessive legal penalties imposed for the possession of this drug. I am certain that legislators will soon modify their attitudes.

As a concerned physician and a concerned parent, I cannot deny the scientific truth that marijuana, in any form, is dangerous to the lungs and can cause impairment of fertility and reproduction in men and women.

It is now known that the sperm count in young men who use marijuana is definitely reduced. It is firmly established that the capacity of the body to protect itself against infections is threatened by the use of marijuana. The total immune system of the body is harmed by this drug.

And every day, as scientific studies progress, the medical literature reveals more information on the danger of marijuana.

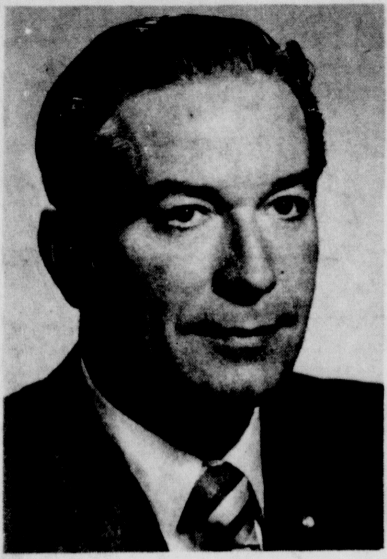

Subtle chemical imbalances are found to take place in heavy smokers of marijuana. Since these are not clearly apparent to the smoker their harm is casually overlooked.

Alteration in the functioning of the brain, lowering of the reflexes, cancerous degeneration of the inner lining of the lungs, changes in sexual potency and infertility are but some of the dangers of marijuana smoking.

There is ample justification for the concern of parents, educators and scientists about the cannabis epidemic that is threatening the health of the world.

DR. COLEMAN welcomes letters from readers, and, while he cannot undertake to answer each one, he will use questions in his column whenever possible and when they are of general interest. Address your letters to Dr. Coleman in care of this newspaper.

Three directors named since last annual meet

First Federal shows record growth

Assets of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Washington C.H. at the end of 1975 reached $26,427,377.84. The $26 million figure was an increase of 20 per cent over a year ago, Harold H. Thompson, executive vice president and secretary, reported at the annual meeting of members.

Thompson said that 1975 "was the greatest growth year ever experienced," exceeding 1974 by $1,579,032.92. The record growth was accomplished despite the uncertainty which has surrounded the nation's economic recovery, Thompson said.

It was reported by Thompson that three new directors were appointed since the last annual meeting to fill vacancies created by the deaths of Edmond S. Woodmansee, R.M. (Bud) Meriweather, and the change of status of A.H. Finley to director emeritus.

Washington C.H. attorney John S. Bath, 726 Fairway Drive, was appointed to complete the term of Mr. Woodmansee, who had been a director since 1955 and Jack Kellough, 10 Colonial Court, was appointed to replace Finley, who had been a director since 1938. Mrs. Constance Meriweather, 940 Clinton Ave., was appointed to fill the unexpired term of her late husband, R.M. (Bud) Meriweather. Mrs. Meriweather becomes the first woman director in the history of the association.

Directors re-elected were W.A. Lovell and David L. Baughn. Other members of the board are W.F. Rettig and Thompson.

First Federal paid a record amount of interest to its savings depositors, $1,318,613.96, and added $221,368.58 to its reserves, bringing the total reserves up to $2,196,558.87, which far exceeds the statutory requirements, Thompson said.

"While savings deposits were generally up for most financial institutions for this year," Thompson said. "We were contending with a continuation of the inflation, the recession and a tendency in the latter part of the year for our savers to seek investments paying a higher rate."

"We look forward to our bicentennial year and hope that the new year will bring us some respite in our economic problems, and that we will receive enough savings deposits to allow us to take care of the mortgage lending needs of this community," he said. Thompson reported that in 1975 First Federal originated 430 mortgage loans amounting to $8,792,600, to buy, build and improve homes, apartments and commercial properties in Washington C.H. and Fayette County. After loan repayments and payoffs, a net increase of $3,319,347 was reported. Total mortgage loans on the books amounted to $23,033,547.24, representing 1,598 loans. The net increase in loans was also a new high for the association.

"We are now paying on our savings accounts and certificates of deposit the highest rates ever, and the highest allowed by law," Thompson pointed out.

"All in all, 1975 was an excellent year for attracting new savings and lending mortgage money for the purchase and construction of residential and commercial properties, but, like all businesses, operating costs have increased equally as much due to inflation, which is the biggest enemy of all businesses," Thompson added.

At the reorganizational meeting immediately following the membership meeting, the results of the election of directors were announced and Lovell, Baughn and Bath were sworn into office.

Officers elected for 1976 were Rettig, chairman of the board; Lovell, president; Baughn, first vice president; Kellough, second vice president; Thompson, executive vice president and secretary; Larry L. Long, assistant secretary; James R. Smith, treasurer; Louise D. Pope, assistant treasurer; Carolyn Kay Walker, head teller, and Bath, attorney.

Full-time and part-time staff and their duties are Thompson, managing officer; Long, loan officer; Smith, bookkeeper; Mrs. Pope, savings officer and data controller; Carole Arnold, insurance and loan file clerk; Mrs. Walker, head teller; Wilma Stewart, teller; Pamela Smith, teller; Linda Highfield, teller, and Ann B. Thompson, part-time office employee.

Geritol generation runs China

By JOHN RODERICK
Associated Press Writer
TOKYO (AP) — China may well have the liveliest functioning gerontocracy around, an inspiration to senior citizens anywhere. Among the Chinese, age is no bar to service. In fact it is a positive asset.

The death last week of Chinese Premier Chou En-lai at the age of 78 underscored this fact. He had been in active command to the age of 76, when cancer struck him down. Even from his hospital room he had, until only a few months ago, kept his hands on the government operation.

Communist Chairman Mao Tse-tung is 82 and though he isn't exactly jumping through hoops or even playing table tennis as he once did, those who meet him say his mind is still agile. And nothing much is done in China without his approval.

The average age of the 16 surviving members of the ruling Communist party Politburo is 66. The oldest member is Chu Teh, chairman of the National Peoples' Congress Standing Committee, who is 89.

The youngest, Wang Hungwen, the onetime Shanghai factory worker and whiz kid of Chinese politics, is an almost boyish 39. Other youngsters include Chang Chun-chiao, a member of the Politburo Standing Committee, and Yao Wenyuan, both in their 50's.

But they are the exceptions. Until recently five of the six men who counted most — Mao and the five partygen — were over 70. Kang Sheng, who died a few weeks ago, was 77. Defense Minister Yeh Chien-ying is 76 and first Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, likely to be the new premier, is close to 72. With Kang and Chou gone there are three vice chairmen left, one of them Wang Hung-wen.

It is not impossible that when the Central Committee meets Chu Teh may be named to fill one of the vacancies, with a younger man, probably Chang Chun-chiao, the other.

The death of Chou and of former acting president Tung Piwu, 90, last April has left two holes in the nine-member lineup of the Politburo Standing Committee. Chu Teh already is on that body and it is not impossible that Mao's wife, Chiang Ching, 61, will move up along with her protege, Yao Wen-yuan.

A Confucian respect for age and presumed wisdom is one of the reasons why the old are not only suffered but respected and used in the proletarian People's Republic.

Another is the fact that those in power are culminating lifetimes of revolution, some of them having fought the party's battles for as much as half a century.

In 1976, Mao's policy is to have the old, the middle-aged and the young in positions of power. But for a few years yet the old will continue to weigh heavily in the political scales.
